Waterfront Plan Bared by City

By WALTER McKINNON
Times Staff

A long-term proposal for development of Victoria's waterfront, stressing maximum public benefit from the 12.9 miles of sea frontage, has been unveiled by the city planning department.

It has not formally been before city council, but Ald. Mike Young said today aldermen have seen it and "in general terms they were very happy with design and concept."

The proposal, drafted by planners James Moody and Graham Stallard, recommends such things as:

● Development of the Inner Harbor area primarily for public recreation use, with removal of the present Black Ball Ferry terminal for park development;

● Redevelopment of the warehouse area across from the Inner Harbor, south of the Johnson Street Bridge, for medium-density residential use, including townhouses;

● Dual-use development of the McKay-Cormack property south of the Inner Harbor and Fisherman's Wharf — soon to be occupied by Oakland Industries, as a combined commercial cannery and tourist attraction;

● And generally more public access and park development on the entire waterfront.

Planner Stallard stressed today the proposal is "more of a position paper" than a blueprint.

Some of the recommendations for the future could be nullified by developments the planners and council have no control over, he said.

For purposes of the proposal, planners have broken up the waterfront into five general areas — the Gorge, working harbor, Inner Harbor, Outer Harbor and Juan de Fuca area.

They visualize, at least for the foreseeable future, both the Gorge and the Juan de Fuca areas remaining as developed urban-residential, with more public access than either offers at present.

The working harbor, generally both sides of the Gorge from Johnson Street Bridge north to the Canadian National Railways trestle, is seen as relatively stable and essential to the area's economy.

However, Stallard points out, a decision to change the type of operation — or close down any one of a number of sites in that area could open new possibilities for the working harbor.

Many of the industrial operations centred on the working harbor, Stollard says, were established at a time when ocean access was vital. Today, however, there are other priorities — such as land transportation access.

"There are certain essential activities to the economy of the region," but where they require to be located is not now known, he says.

The proposals are still in draft form. Stollard and Moody say they should be consolidated into a report for council and public presentation later this month.

Moody says Mayor Peter Pollen saw initial working drawings and recommendations, was enthusiastic and asked for a full report.

The planners visualize some of their recommendations coming to fruition within three years, while others may not take place for as long as 15 years.

STILL MORE PROBLEMS faced Montreal police as they attempted to deal with a demonstration Saturday in protest against the Vietnam war. A motorcycle policeman is struck by a banner during the height of the protest.

Shots Fell Wallace At Rally

Times News Services

Gov. George Wallace of Alabama was shot this afternoon seconds after he delivered a campaign speech at a shopping centre in Laurel, Maryland.

"I would say in medical terms, he is alive," said spokesman C. Hatley at Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, near Laurel. Wallace was taken to the operating room for emergency surgery.

The Alaoama governor had just finished a speech in his bid to become the Democratic presidential candidate in the U.S. at the shopping centre and was shot when he went out into the crowd to shake hands. He spoke from behind a bullet-proof podium.

Dean Reynolds a UPI reporter, said the governor had just taken off his coat when the shots rang out. Reynolds said the crowd around him immediately broke and ran.

BLOOD ON SHIRT

Reynolds said Wallace dropped to the ground and that he could see blood on his blue shirt.

One report at the scene said four shots were fired. One of Wallace's campaign workers, a woman, was wounded in the gunfire. She was taken away in a second ambulance.

Moments later, George Mangum, a Wallace campaign worker, told the crowd: "I'm told the police have a man in custody."

Wallace and the woman were on the ground near the speaker's rostrum, where first aid was administered until the first ambulance arrived. The wounded woman, not immediately identified, was crying and was comforted by police.

Billy Grammer, a country music entertainer on the platform with Wallace when the gunfire erupted said the candidate was hit twice, once in the middle of the stomach and once in the left arm.

"He looked like he was hurt pretty bad," Grammer said.

An Alabama State trooper on the platform also was wounded, Grammer said.

NEW QUEBEC WALKOUTS

Times News Services

QUEBEC — Province-wide labor unrest entered its second week today with further walkouts in some areas and efforts to get back to normal in others.

About 1,800 liquor board employees here and in Montreal walked off the job in some liquor stores, warehouses and administrative offices.

A surprise 24-hour walkout by 800 blue collar employees in Quebec City began at 8 a.m. An unknown number of postal workers walked out at the post office here today and door-to-door mail delivery stopped indefinitely.

Several hospitals were hit by illegal walkouts forcing supervisory staff and volunteers to fill gaps.

In Sept-Iles, Quebecair and Air Canada, the two airlines serving the south shore community, suspended operations Sunday afternoon.

A provincial police spokesman said the airlines made the decision to cancel the flights. There were reports the airlines received a telephone call warning that the airport would be blown up if airline traffic continued.

Two small fires were set Sunday night at the Quebec Cartier mining site at Port Cartier, causing about $1,000 damage, police said.

Norbert Rodrigue, spokesman for the common front of public servants, lashed out today at Premier Robert Bourassa's statement Sunday that there were scheduled union-government meetings which could bring early settlement of Quebec's labor problems.

BAD FAITH

Rodrigue said no talks between common front leaders and newly-appointed Civil Service Minister Jean Cournoyer had been held and none were planned.

"The Quebec government has once again shown proof of its bad faith by making false insinuations," he said.

He said on the weekend three Quebec labor presidents will not appeal one-year sentences for contempt of court imposed last Monday.

Bourassa in a television interview Sunday said he was convinced negotiations with

South Vietnamese troops today continued to strengthen their position around the city of Hue — believed to be the next target in the current North Vietnamese offensive.

Saigon troops today re-occupied Fire Base Bastogne, 12 miles west of Hue following 36 hours of fierce fighting and B-52 saturation strikes.

Allied forces are also only a stones throw from another important fire base called Checkmate on a hill overlooking Bastogne, according to Associated Press front-line correspondent Peter Arnett.

The drive to the two fire bases was made by more than 2,000 men advancing on foot behind a shield of artillery fire and U.S. bomber support.

"We are fighting for elbow room," one U.S. adviser said of the fighting around Hue.

South Vietnamese officers, however, said they were more interested in destroying enemy troops than re-occupying the fire bases.

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — After 66 years of abstinence, Owen Sound has agreed by plebiscite to license liquor and dininglounge s.

The city went "dry" in 1906, although Royal Canadian Legion branches, military messes and private clubs were allowed to dispense liquor.

OTTAWA — The ninth biennial convention of the Canadian Labor Congress opened today with close to 1,800 delegates rallying to a call to defend the right to strike.

"The right of organized workers to withhold their labor is, in the final analysis, the only way in which the collective bargaining process can remain viable," CLC president Donald MacDonald said in his opening address.

"If the right to strike is outlawed," he said, "bargaining can be nothing more than chit-chat between the employer and the union, with the employer in the end unilaterally decreeing wages, salaries and other working conditions."

9 Dead in Belfast Battle

Times News Services

BELFAST — British paratroopers clamped an armored grip on Belfast's Roman Catholic Ballymurphy area today. Authorities revised upward the number of dead in the worst Catholic-Protestant battle in three years of strife.

Army spokesmen said today at least nine persons died in weekend fighting between opposing religious groups, with the British army caught in the crossfire between them.

The weekend fighting brought to 327 the number of dead in Northern Ireland since British troops arrived in August, 1969, to control strife between the majority Protestants and outnumbered Catholics. The army said two of the weekend's nine dead were killed Friday night or early Saturday morning.

The army said quiet prevailed early today on the battlefield of bullet-scarred buildings between the Ballymurphy district, one of the toughest Catholic enclaves in the city, and the Protestant Springmartin housing development.

"But there is still a lot of tension in the air," one British officer said. "It won't take much to touch things off again."

More than 2,000 shots were fired in the 36-hour battle, and more than 70 civilians and soldiers were wounded.

The battle began Saturday afternoon when a bomb in a car blasted Kelly's Bar, on the edge of Ballymurphy. The Catholics charged that Protestants planted the bomb; the army said it believed it belonged to the Irish Republican Army and went off prematurely.

The pub was jammed with soccer fans watching an international match on television, and 53 persons, including some children playing outside, were wounded. Two men seen near the car when it blew up may have been killed.

Snipers hidden along the grassy edge of the Springmartin estate opened fire on the crowd which raced to the blast scene.

NOW WE KNOW FOR SURE . . . MONEY IS REALLY DIRTY

CHICAGO (CP) — A couple of Kentucky doctors have found that money is really dirty and have published a tongue-in-cheek paper on their findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The doctors borrowed 62 pennies, 38 nickles, 27 dimes, 33 quarters and 50 paper bills of small denomination, with no discrimination as to age, sex, color or religion of the lender, so the results would be unbiased. They then cultured the coins and bills.

They discovered that 13 per cent of the coins and 42 per cent of the bills were contaminated by potentially disease-causing bacteria. Pennies, nickels and small denomination paper bills were more often contaminated than larger coins and bills, a fact they explained was logically due to the rapid turnover and frequent exchange of small coins and bills.

The investigators offered these tongue-in-cheek Rules to Stay Sterile By:

1. Keep your money in the bank.
2. If you must carry money, carry only large bills, preferably the $50 and $100 denominations.
3. Don't make change.
4. Keep your hands out of your pockets.
5. Get rid of your money rapidly.
6. Campaign against piggy banks.

The authors concluded sadly: "Despite the importance of this study, the investigators fear that people will continue to handle, fondle and jingle in their pockets — money."

As a panacea they suggested: "In order to further this research, we will accept and examine any money sent to us. If it is found to be contaminated, we have facilities for its safe disposal."

Authors are Drs. Berel L. Abrams and Norton G. Waterman from the department of Surgery, University of Louisville School of Medicine.

TV's Hoss Cartwright Dead at 43

HOLLYWOOD — Dan Blocker, whose portrayal of the gentle, hulking Hoss Cartwright on the Bonanza television series made him one of North America's best-known actors, will be buried in the small Texas town where he grew up.

Blocker, 43, died Saturday of two blood clots in the lung.

A family spokesman said Blocker developed an infection after undergoing gall bladder surgery May 1. He died a few hours after returning to hospital.

Tentative plans call for the 300-pound six-foot-four actor to be buried beside his father this week in O'Donnell, Texas.

Blocker's bulk and West Texas drawl disguised his being a millionaire and former school teacher. But his friends said the broad humor and tenderness he displayed before 400 million viewers in 80 countries for 13 years as a son of Ben Cartwright on the Ponderosa Ranch were characteristic of the man.

DAN BLOCKER

GREAT ENERGY

Julian Goodman, president of NBC, which televises the western series, recalled that Blocker was "a man of great energy, but he was a gentleman who refused to allow his sons to own a gun or go hunting — until the animals learn to shoot back." Blocker once said the amount of money he made ($30,000 for each Bonanza episode) was "absolutely immoral."

And, of devoting most of his career to one part, he once remarked: "Let's face it. I sold out. For money."

After college in Texas, Blocker served as first sergeant in the army.

He taught in New Mexico and then began work on a doctorate in education at the University of California at Los Angeles.

To help support his family he looked to acting, and quickly got roles in Gunsmoke and other television series.

He attributed his success to his size: "if I'd been an average-size guy, I never would've stood a chance. There were only a few big guys around."

Blocker was married for 20 years to his five-foot-three college sweetheart, Dolphia, who was with him when he died. They had twin daughters and two sons.

Lorne Greene, the Canadian-born actor who plays Ben Cartwright in the series, said:

"His sudden loss comes as such a great personal shock to me that I cannot properly put it into mere words . . .

"Our personal relationship was like that of brothers or a father and son."

AUCKLAND — New Zealand's Supreme Court dismissed an appeal today by women's liberation champion Germaine Greer who was fined $50 for using obscene language at a public lecture.

Judge Duncan McMullin ruled that a four-letter word used by Miss Greer was "contrary to accepted standards at a public meeting."

Judge McMullin said the word used by Miss Greer might be found acceptable by some persons but others would find it "a grubby term."

Those at a public meeting were entitled to expect that the speaker would be able to express herself without resorting to such language, he said.

MOSCOW — It was no time for a wrong number. Inspecting communications lines in Eastern Siberia, Vladimir Mitrofanov was chased by a just-awakened, hungry bear.

Mitrofanov scrambled up the nearest telephone pole, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said. The bear rose on its hind legs and began shaking the pole. As the pole swayed, Mitrofanov hooked up the portable telephone he carried and announced his plight. A rescue helicopter swept in. Its crew frightened the bear away with rifle shots.

CINCINNATI — "This is a holdup," the young man told Lillian Sanford when he entered the Grote bakery Thursday. "Don't scream and don't run."

Mrs. Sanford, 55, screamed and ran to the rear of the store. There she fainted. She later told police that when she came to, the key to the cash register was jammed in the lock and the robber was gone. No cash was missing.

CHICHESTER, England — Mick Roche, 31, and Charlie Marshall, 22, stole a bus to return to their native Ireland, a court was told.

A detective said the two had been discussing how they would go home and one of them got up from his seat in a restaurant and returned a short time later driving a bus. Police eventually stopped the pair after they crashed into two police cars.

BARNSLEY, England — Frank Bottom became Frank Emerson. "People may not understand why I changed my name," he said, "but it's such a relief."

Emerson said jokes about his name started when he was in school and that his daughter Marie Rose used to come home in tears because classmates called her "Rosy Bottom."

PITTSBURGH — Mrs. Margaret Hartzell spent Mother's Day in a hospital where she gave birth last week to her 17th child.

"Do you think it would be terrible for a mother not to miss Mother's Day at home?" she asked with a mischievous smile. "It really is quiet and peaceful here, and I am enjoying the rest," she said.

METZ, France — Farmer Jean Limousin has been tilling his cornfield at Cesse, Meuse Department, for years without noticing anything unusual.

Things changed when his plow got stuck. Further digging brought in French Army bomb disposal experts. Limousin's plow had unearthed a stock of 10 tons of First World War shells — in perfect working order.

Paris Visit Begins

PARIS — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrived here under grey skies today for an official visit marking Britain's move to join the European Common Market.

The Queen and Philip were welcomed at Orly Airport by President George Pompidou who last year dropped long-time French objections to British entry into the six-nation Market.

Union Jacks and French flags flew at the airport and lined the broad Avenue des Champs Elysees for the Queen's five-day state visit. Paris newspapers published Welcome to Elizabeth headlines in English.

During her visit, the Queen will stay in a 17th-century palace built by the "sun king," Louis XIV, as a place to hold parties and escape from court formality.

At the Grand Trianon Palace in Versailles the Queen will find herself surrounded by a carefully restored reflection of French glory in architecture, art and furnishings, with reminders of Louis XIV in the three-centuries-old panelling and of Napoleon in the first-empire style of many rooms.

Although much smaller then the nearby main Palace of Versailles, the Grand Trianon still has 70 rooms.

STONES SET TO ROLL

LONDON — The Rolling Stones plan to hit the road next year with a rock 'n' roll circus, crossing Britain in a special train full of musicians, monkeys and midgets. Mick Jagger said today.

"The whole thing will be a sort of rock 'n' rock carnival with games, circus acts and things like that," Jagger said.

The Stones will headline the planned carnival show with another British rock group, The Who.

Performances will be held in a gigantic tent capable of holding 10,000 fans.

Call Rallies CLC

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The ninth biennial convention of the Canadian Labor Congress opened today with close to 1,800 delegates rallying to a call to defend the right to strike.

"The right of organized workers to withhold their labor is, in the final analysis, the only way in which the collective bargaining process can remain viable," CLC president Donald MacDonald said in his opening address.

"If the right to strike is outlawed," he said, "bargaining can be nothing more than chit-chat between the employer and the union, with the employer in the end unilaterally decreeing wages, salaries and other working conditions."

9 Dead in Belfast Battle

Times News Services

BELFAST — British paratroopers clamped an armored grip on Belfast's Roman Catholic Ballymurphy area today. Authorities revised upward the number of dead in the worst Catholic-Protestant battle in three years of strife.

Army spokesmen said today at least nine persons died in weekend fighting between opposing religious groups, with the British army caught in the crossfire between them.

The weekend fighting brought to 327 the number of dead in Northern Ireland since British troops arrived in August, 1969, to control strife between the majority Protestants and outnumbered Catholics. The army said two of the weekend's nine dead were killed Friday night or early Saturday morning.

The army said quiet prevailed early today on the battlefield of bullet-scarred buildings between the Ballymurphy district, one of the toughest Catholic enclaves in the city, and the Protestant Springmartin housing development.

"But there is still a lot of tension in the air," one British officer said. "It won't take much to touch things off again."

More than 2,000 shots were fired in the 36-hour battle, and more than 70 civilians and soldiers were wounded.

The battle began Saturday afternoon when a bomb in a car blasted Kelly's Bar, on the edge of Ballymurphy. The Catholics charged that Protestants planted the bomb; the army said it believed it belonged to the Irish Republican Army and went off prematurely.

The pub was jammed with soccer fans watching an international match on television, and 53 persons, including some children playing outside, were wounded. Two men seen near the car when it blew up may have been killed.

Snipers hidden along the grassy edge of the Springmartin estate opened fire on the crowd which raced to the blast scene.

NOW WE KNOW FOR SURE . . . MONEY IS REALLY DIRTY

CHICAGO (CP) — A couple of Kentucky doctors have found that money is really dirty and have published a tongue-in-cheek paper on their findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The doctors borrowed 62 pennies, 38 nickles, 27 dimes, 33 quarters and 50 paper bills of small denomination, with no discrimination as to age, sex, color or religion of the lender, so the results would be unbiased. They then cultured the coins and bills.

They discovered that 13 per cent of the coins and 42 per cent of the bills were contaminated by potentially disease-causing bacteria. Pennies, nickels and small denomination paper bills were more often contaminated than larger coins and bills, a fact they explained was logically due to the rapid turnover and frequent exchange of small coins and bills.

The investigators offered these tongue-in-cheek Rules to Stay Sterile By:

1. Keep your money in the bank.
2. If you must carry money, carry only large bills, preferably the $50 and $100 denominations.
3. Don't make change.
4. Keep your hands out of your pockets.
5. Get rid of your money rapidly.
6. Campaign against piggy banks.

The authors concluded sadly: "Despite the importance of this study, the investigators fear that people will continue to handle, fondle and jingle in their pockets — money."

As a panacea they suggested: "In order to further this research, we will accept and examine any money sent to us. If it is found to be contaminated, we have facilities for its safe disposal."

Authors are Drs. Berel L. Abrams and Norton G. Waterman from the department of Surgery, University of Louisville School of Medicine.

GARBAGE DUMP for many Vancouverites is the road in Delta which leads to the city's disposal grounds, currently picketed by striking civic workers. Talks collapsed Friday night and the deadlock threatens an indefinite continuation of the stoppage by 3,650 in Vancouver, Burnaby and New Westminster.

Convicts Form Union

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's convicts have formed their own trade union — and one of its main aims is the almost total abolition of imprisonment.

The union, Preservation of the Rights of Prisoners, has been organized by 43-year-old Dick Pooley, who has spent 20 years behind bars and was once described by a judge as "the top safecracker in Britain."

The idea came to him five years ago while he was sewing mailbags in Dartmoor Prison. Since then he has enlisted the support of university lecturers, lawyers and others who have paid £1 each to become associate members of PROP.

union leaders could begin again.

He said Cournoyer would meet with common front leaders today and "after these meetings we will be in a better position to assess possible results."

However, he warned union leaders against pursuing a policy of "anarchy and chaos" and misinforming rank and file.

Bourassa also lashed out at what he called arrogance of the federal government in presenting social legislation which Quebec finds "totally unacceptable."

SYMPATHY

Bourassa said in an interview he sympathized with two of his cabinet ministers, Communications Minister Jean-Paul L'Allier and Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay, who were reported to have resigned last week because of the federal government's interference with Quebec's jurisdiction in the field of social affairs.

Both ministers said they would remain in the cabinet because of the labor difficulties the province is experiencing.

"The unilateral decisions of the federal government in a provincial field — health and welfare — put heavy pressure on our social welfare budget," Bourassa said.

IMPORTANT

"Intervention in other sectors, economics for instance, is less important, but social affairs is extremely important."

The social legislation Bourassa referred to was the increase in old-age pensions contained in the federal budget presented May 8 by Finance Minister John Turner.

On Saturday Bourassa in an interview on radio station CJAD said that Quebec is conducting an assessment of its relations with the federal government.

He said that the federal system had benefitted Quebecers as individuals in the last two years more than the province as a whole.

MAJOR GOVERNMENT

People in Quebec have always considered the province to be their major government and the federal government as their secondary one.

In Montreal today there were predictions of a bus and subway drivers' strike Tuesday to follow a vote tonight by 3,000 drivers.

Also in Montreal, newsroom employees of the morning Le Devoir launched a 24-hour strike today that was expected to prohibit publication of the Tuesday edition.

Newspaper publication has been a favorite target of the protesting unionists, who also have occupied about a dozen radio stations for various periods.

STOP GARGAGE PICK-UPS

As well, 3,000 of 8,000 striking City of Montreal blue collar workers voted by a narrow margin to cut off all services such as garbage collection, street cleaning and park maintenance. However, city water supplies are to be maintained.

The Montreal workers said they walked out legally Friday to back contract demands but also to protest jailing Tuesday of three top Quebec labor leaders. The jailings were the reason given for today's blue collar walkout here.

However, there were moves in some communities to steer clear of troubles which brought businesses and schools to a standstill last week.

About 4,500 Alcan employees in Arvida voted against a general walkout to protest legislation ending last month's public service strike.

Workers were back on the job at major plants in the northshore communities of Hauterive and Baie Comeau as stores gradually re-opened, and a citizens' committee urged a return to normal.

Police kept up patrols in both communities but all was reported quiet.

Businessmen in the iron-ore shipping port of Sept-Iles, scene of the worst violence and only death linked to the labor turnoil, re-opened shops and offices today. They said police are "in full control."

Employees of the Iron Ore Co. of Canada Ltd., the Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railways and Napoleon Brochu Construction were back at work but construction workers stayed away from the site of a new iron ore installation being built.

Groups of men gathered near the entrance to the Iron Ore company property but police said there were neither pickets nor incidents preventing workers from going back to work.

Supporters of the common front of public servants said in a television broadcast that the citizens' back-to-work call was a "provocation."

operation is to destroy enemy forces that have come too close to Hue," said one senior field officer.

Saigon reports claim more than 200 Communist troops killed in the fighting with a loss of only two South Vietnamese soldiers.

Meanwhile, as part of the effort to knock out all means of transportation within North Vietnam, the U.S. has seeded mines in canals and rivers used by the Communists as supply routes.

Bombing also continues on major highways, railway lines and switching junctions, according to Pentagon sources.

The U.S. has also boosted naval strength off the coast of Vietnam but has made no new strikes against the port city of Haiphong. Moscow sources say that ships which have reached harbor are now unloading cargo normally.

In New York, the Soviet Union told the United Nations Security Council today the U.S. claim that it mined North Vietnamese harbors in self-defence is groundless.

"The facts, which are known to the whole world, show that no aggression has been committed against the United States," Ambassador Jacob Malik wrote to the Council.

"On the contrary, the United States itself is acting as an aggressor in Vietnam," he said.

Malik said in his letter that the U.S. action is "seriously complicating the situation in Southeast Asia and is fraught with dangerous consequences for international peace and security."

As the North Vietnamese circle tightens around the Central Highlands city of Kontum, much U.S. air strength has been deployed in flying Montagnard refugees to the city of Pleiku, 25 miles south.

Primitive tribespeople continue to straggle into the city faster than helicopters and transports can fly them out, however. More than 15,000 of them — along with 10,000 other civilians — are said to remain in the beleaguered city.

Some 2,500 Montagnard men have been issued arms and assigned to militia units defending the city, from which 20,000 people have been evacuated in the past three weeks.

Because of the heatup of the war, U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam have dwindled to their lowest point in eight months.

Only 400 servicemen have been removed in the past week — leaving 65,000 U.S. troops still in South Vietnam.

"120,000 miles, never had the head off, and it was perfect when I sold it."

Head Mechanic Jim McIlwaine, knows the value of Bardahl.

"First off," he says, "my boss used Bardahl in his Buick. I bought it at 50,000 miles, put 70,000 on it myself, and never had the head off. 120 lbs. compression on every cylinder when I sold it.

"The next car I had was the same thing. The only reason I sold it was the body dropped off! I'm sold on Bardahl."

How Bardahl works.

Engine oils prevent metal-to-metal contact. But sometimes they can fail. At start-up, for instance, when the oil has drained down into the crankcase. Or, where moving parts meet, high pressures and high temperatures can heat oil to its "flash point." When this happens, oil burns off allowing the metal surfaces to touch.

With your engine robbed of protection, temperatures soar where metal meets metal. Tiny, microscopic welds and tears occur rapidly. This is a major cause of engine wear.

This won't happen with Bardahl. Bardahl, in effect, "plates" itself to metal surfaces. Even if your oil burns off at "flash point," Bardahl won't. A tough, slippery layer of molecules stay on the job. Wear is dramatically reduced.

No other oil—or other additive—has the Bardahl polar organic formula. Or anything like it.

If you care about your car, add Bardahl when you change oil.

Note: Use Bardahl 1 if your engine is in good condition and not burning oil. Bardahl 2 if it's "chattery" or smoky.

Ney Urges Island Fight Against Drugs

NANAIMO — Vancouver Island communities should unite forces to fight the drug problem, Mayor Frank Ney suggested today.

Calling for increased effort, particularly on the part of federal financing of law enforcement and drug abuse programs, Ney stressed the need for communicating between groups, communities and individuals.

"I think the whole Island should work together on this one," he said, calling the escalation of narcotics users a "vicious problem."

"If we don't stop it we'll become a nation of lotus-eaters," he said.

300 USERS

The mayor said he is justified in asking for more RCMP protection directed to narcotics control in Nanaimo.

Only a year ago in Nanaimo there were 80 heroin users known to police. Today there are 300, and for every heroin addict there are 10 users of other personality-altering drugs such as marijuana, LSD and a wide range of chemical derivatives.

"I feel justified in asking that half the (RCMP) drug squad in Victoria be sent up," Ney said, considering that more than half the 844 heroin users on the Island are located in the northern half.

The mayor said 400 heroin addicts are residents of Nanaimo and north.

24 ON FORCE

Nanaimo has accepted its law enforcement responsibilities, he pointed out, giving figures to show that even with a drop in population from 15,188 in 1965 to 15,000 this year, Nanaimo is spending $25.62 a head for police work, an increase of $6.62 a head in one year.

In 1960 the per capita cost of police protection in Nanaimo was $7.53. There are 24 men on the force, up seven since 1965.

Ney said it could be questioned whether the federal government is doing its share, noting that its participation in the narcotics addiction treatment centre a Nanaimo had dropped from 84 per cent in 1968-69 to 35 per cent in 1971-72.

Drugs are "a problem at every level" of government, he said. All levels will have to devote more tax money to the control of drugs.

"I don't feel the federal government has shown much leadership in this matter," the mayor suggested.

At the same time he said he did not want to leave the impression he was criticizing any level of government in view of the rapid escalation of the problem.

The drug crisis had developed only in the last 36 months "and a lot of dedicated people are working on it."

"We've been overcome like an avalanche. We must recognize every level will have to have more money in the budget for drugs," Ney said.

Cost of the Nanaimo addiction treatment centre is divided 70-30 between the federal and provincial governments, Ney said. Medical Services Commission, B.C. Hospital Insurance Service and the Provincial Health Board share the provincial cost.

At the local level Nanaimo is helping in six areas, the mayor said. There are the crisis centre, a drop-in centre, the methadone clinic, a hostel service, school education program and the mayor's drug committee which consists of representatives from the community.

Comparing Nanaimo police protection costs, Ney said similar communities pay less: White Rock $11 per capita, Burnaby $16, Surrey $15, Richmond $15, Delta $11 and Coquitlam $7.

NEWS GUILD VOTES STRIKE

Members of the Victoria Newspaper Guild Sunday night voted 76 per cent in favor of striking if differences with management over current contract negotiations are unresolved.

More than 82 per cent of the Guild membership attended the Sunday meeting.

The vote came after four other unions at Victoria Press Ltd. — which publishes the Times and the Daily Colonist — conducted votes on the strike issue.

OTHER VOTES

Members of the Victoria Mailers Union, Local 121, voted 100 per cent, International Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union, Local 88, 95 per cent and Victoria Typographical Union, Local 201, 96 per cent in favor of asking their international unions for authorization to hold strike votes, which is necessary under their constitutions.

Last week, members of the Victoria Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union, Local 79, voted 95 per cent in favor of strike action.

The Victoria Newspaper Guild represents employees in the newsrooms of the Times and the Colonist, and in the advertising, circulation, business office, maintenance, photo-engraving and library departments of Victoria Press Ltd.

TALKS REQUESTED

Today, the Victoria Newspaper Council of Unions, which represents the five unions and 330 employees, requested the company to negotiate with each union on certain individual issues. The Council has informed Mediation Officer Clark Gilmour of the request.

This year is the first in which the five unions employed at Victoria Press have acted together on the joint council and the first year in which all unions have either voted in favor of strike action or have moved towards holding strike votes.

The council of unions would make no statement today on the issues, except to say "they involve both wages and fringe benefits."

Victoria Press general manager J. C. Melville said he had received the memorandum from the council of unions requesting resumption of negotiations on an individual bases but would not comment any further.

"These negotiations are now, at this moment, in the hands of the mediation officer. He is still involved and it would be inappropriate for me to make any comment on them at this time," Melville said.

Grenade Found

Saanich police are refraining from comment on a hand grenade found Sunday evening on the grounds of Lochside Elementary School, 1145 Royal Oak.

It was not known if the grenade was live, and according to Canadian Armed Forces procedure a delay of about a day must be observed before demolitions experts handle it.

Nationalism First—Councillors

Times Staff

POWER RIVER — Mingling with the pulp mill odour, a whiff of nationalism hovered briefly here at the weekend conference of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities. (See also Pages 8 and 9.)

Delegates soundly defeated a Saanich resolution Saturday seeking a change in provincial legislation which would give property owners of any nationality the right to vote on money issues.

At present, this right is limited under the Municipal Act to owner-electors who are Canadian citizens or British subjects.

A Capital Regional District director, Howard Elder of Sooke, told delegates unblushingly that he is of "a nationalistic bent."

"I like everyone who comes to Canada to take steps toward becoming a Canadian," he said. "I think we should leave as many laws as we can to encourage people to take on Canadian citizenship."

ONUS ON PERSON

Northe Cowichan Ald. Donald Morton agreed, saying the onus is on the resident of foreign extraction to take out citizenship papers.

The conference also defeated a Saanich resolution calling for reinstatement of the former Municipal Act provision that a voters' list may be amended to within 30 days of a vote on a money bylaw.

Some delegates said such last-minute changes to voters' lists have proved unrealistically expensive.

But three other Saanich resolutions were adopted. These called, respectively, for:

- Legislation that would allow municipalities to levy a "reasonable charge" on universities for provision of essential services.
- A reduction in municipalities' share of welfare costs, from the present level of 15 per cent. (This resolution, not surprisingly in view of recent statements by Premier Bennett that there will be no change in the present cost-sharing formula, was not debated.)
- Amendments to the Municipal Act to allow councils to charge fees for rezoning applications.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said that implicit in the last resolution was "a condemnation of municipalities now levying fees for rezoning applications knowing that it is not legally permissible."

SEWAGE DUMPED TO CHASE FREAKS

GLASTONBURY, England (AP) — Town council, fearing an invasion this summer like the one that brought 16,000 youngsters tramping into the district last year, is dumping sewage around tents and caravans of Jesus freaks.

But the youths refuse to move.

Taj Drexel, an 18-year-old girl who lives in a caravan on the outskirts of town, where legend has it Jesus Christ visited in his youth, said:

"I've been in poor health since the council dumped the stuff. It's enough to make anyone sick. But Glastonbury is a religious place for us and I've heard the angels singing here. We'll just sit tight."

Town clerk George Harland said: "The dumping is a preventive action. We've been warned that this summer the town will be invaded by hundreds of hippies.

"They can be a danger to health."

Sidney Probing Paid Fire Help

It is unlikely Sidney can continue to provide volunteer fire and ambulance protection for more than another year, said Fire Warden Committee Chairman Ald. Hugh Hollingworth.

Sidney fire chief Hugh Loney is also concerned over the increasing number of ambulance calls which summoned volunteers to emergencies at Victoria airport, the B.C. Ferry terminal at Swartz Bay, and residential areas of Sidney and North Saanich.

Although response to nighttime alarms is well covered, the number of volunteers who attend day calls can be as low as four.

Chief Loney, who works for a local building supply firm, feels that employers cannot be expected to donate time expended by volunteers as far as ambulance calls increase.

350 ALARMS

Last year there were as many as 350 ambulance alarms, an increase of 50 calls over the previous year, plus about 60 fire alarms.

In addition to emergency calls the volunteers meet once a week for practice.

Hollingworth emphasized that the men themselves do not want any charges to be made for their service. "The volunteers say this would be moonlighting against paid outfits" explained Hollingworth.

"They have joined the force in the spirit of helping their neighbors."

As a result of reports from Hollingworth and fire chief Loney, however, Sidney Council has asked the fire warden's committee to come up with recommendations for paid help before 1973 budget time.

Hollingworth predicts that to start with a minimum of 2 full-time employees will be required.

A Massey Cousin Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Dorothy Massey Goulding, 74, director of the Toronto Children Players for nearly 30 years, died Sunday.

A cousin of actor Raymond Massey and of the late Vincent Massey, former governor-general of Canada, she was associated with the theatrical group from its founding in 1932 and directed it from 1934 until her retirement in the early 1960s, when it dissolved.

Disenchantment and Decay

Further evidence of this community's discontent with the kind of representation it has been receiving in the legislature in recent years was revealed by the decision of the Saanich and Islands Social Credit nomination meeting last week. Voting delegates dumped John Tisdalle, who had won the seat for the party in the last six elections, sitting continuously since Mr. Bennett scored his 1953 sweep. And they unloaded him in favor of a man who, although he sat for four years on the Saanich council, has a politically dog-eared record of failure as an aspiring Liberal, aspiring Conservative and aspiring Social Crediter, and who, among other non-successes, was defeated in last December's mayoralty contest in Victoria.

Such a choice refutes Mr. Tisdalle's assertion to the nominating meeting that "Social Credit is not on trial here. Neither is the member." Mr. Tisdalle was obviously wrong.

The decision emphasizes the point made in these columns — and in statements from men in public life divorced from the Social Credit government's disciplinary machine — that Greater Victoria's interests have not received the attention they should from the men placed in office by Social Credit constituents. Defences raised by the criticized members carried little conviction. The realization has grown that Greater Victoria's provincial legislative members have, with one exception, performed as party hacks, regardless of the interests of the people whom they were supposed to represent. The one exception, ex-Social Creditor Dr. Scott Wallace, capped his brief career when he defected to the seatless Conservatives. He left no doubt that British Columbia has been ruled by one-man government.

The outcome of the Saanich and Islands meeting presents an interesting situation for the ridings within the capital region. Public Works Minister Chant has announced his decision to retire. Mr. Tisdalle has been relieved of the nomination. The only remnants of Social Credit's capital guard are the Minister of Industrial Development, Trade and Commerce, Waldo Skillings, and Esquimalt member Herbert Bruch. As the pre-election tocsin sounds, neither is in a position to ask, with comfort, for whom the bell tolls.

Mr. Bennett may fall back on his conventional ploy to explain the present condition of Social Credit in Greater Victoria, arguing that he heads a democratic movement exercising freedom of choice. That is a contention which has been disputed by Dr. Wallace and many others.

At all events, a government which has been in office for 20 years is springing leaks at the seams. Age, disenchantment among members and constituency organizations, and voter resentment against men who have not been representing them adequately, are breaking up the party's formerly solid front. The gate is wide open for some new entries from other parties — and we can be sure they'll be lining up.

Differences

In a day when relations with the United States are being called forthright and filled with important break-throughs, the words of one of this country's most honored men can be taken to show that these are not new developments.

Speaking at an Ottawa service club recently Mr. Lester Pearson noted that President Eisenhower in the 1950s used to dwell on the necessity for recognizing Canadian-American differences and stressed the impossibility of balancing the books with every trading partner "once a month or once a year." Mr. Pearson commended this latter remark to the U.S. Treasury Secretary, John Connally.

The former prime minister calls for the promotion of Canada's interests when they are "legitimate and demonstrable," and cautioned that steps to advance them should be taken "with resolution but without provocation."

Mr. Pearson's remarks are useful and remind us that the quality of our friendship with the United States has taken years to mature and that quiet diplomacy and frank talk are compatible.

To Kill More Humanely

Seeking agreement on two new protocols to be added to the four Geneva Conventions of 1949, 320 delegates from 65 countries have assembled in Geneva under the auspices of the International Committee of the Red Cross.

The protocols were drawn up last year at a meeting of legal, defence and diplomatic experts but have still to be approved.

In general, the protocols are designed to make the rules of war more appropriate to modern, particularly guerrilla, warfare. The first protocol would allow for better recognition of sanitary and medical personnel, Red Cross mercy flights and better treatment of prisoners of war and civilians. One important provision would forbid reprisals against civilians by bombardment.

The second protocol would deal with civil wars. And here many problems are expected since an accepted definition is hard to come by. Is Vietnam an international war or a civil war, for instance? Authorities are adamant about dealing with the problem, since they point out that most conflicts since 1945 have been civil wars which have drawn in other powers.

If agreed upon in Geneva, the protocols would go to a Red Cross conference in Teheran next year and then to a diplomatic conference in 1974. They would become effective when ratified by the home governments.

In attempting to strengthen the regime of law in war the world is at least making faltering steps to the eventual abandonment of war as an instrument of policy. It is a sign that we are slowly coming to recognize the importance of our common humanity.

Gray Area in Gray Report

TORONTO — One of the darker mysteries of the Foreign Takeovers Review Act is that the federal government, after agonizing so long over the problem of foreign investment in Canada, has brought in legislation which is probably unconstitutional.

A federal law dealing with foreign takeovers could be framed on solid constitutional grounds, but this bill virtually invites challenge in the courts. Assuming that Prime Minister Trudeau and his colleagues have not drafted it in ignorance the only conclusion is that they will not be unhappy if it is declared invalid.

The constitutionality of the legislation is hardly of academic interest, since it will be open to any provincial government, or any Canadian company affected by it, to challenge it on constitutional grounds. The Ontario government is not likely to do so for political reasons but others most certainly will.

What makes the Takeovers Review Act vulnerable to challenge is that it does not assert a jurisdiction which is clearly federal under the British North America Act. On the contrary, it clearly proposes an intrusion into provincial areas which the courts may well find unacceptable.

BNA Act Jumble

The Gray Report contains a few pages suggesting that federal jurisdiction for controlling foreign investment can "likely" be founded on three sections of the BNA Act: to make laws "for the peace, order and good government of Canada" in relation to all matters not assigned exclusively to the provinces; to regulate trade and commerce; and to legislate exclusively on all matters with respect to "naturalization and aliens." The proposed legislation appears to be a jumble of all three authorities and the champion of none.

The "peace, order and good government" section is tacitly invoked in the bill by declaring that foreign takeovers of Canadian companies will be permitted or not on the basis of a federal assessment of their "significant benefit to Canada." The bill then sets out several criteria of a national character, including "the compatibility of the acquisition with national industrial and economic policies."

But the courts have always looked askance at federal efforts to elevate the "peace, order and good government" section into some kind of holy writ for anything Ottawa chooses to do.

In the first place, it can only be applied to matters not coming within the classes of legislative subjects assigned to the provinces. Two such subjects are property and civil rights in the province and the incorporation of companies with provincial objects. Since the proposed federal bill clearly will deal with certain property rights in the province, and since it makes no distinction between companies whether federally or provincially incorporated, the "peace, order and good government" argument would seem to have little going for it.

The federal bill also invokes Ottawa's power to regulate trade and commerce by setting up criteria for assessing a proposed takeover which refer to things like productivity, industrial efficiency, the effect on competition, and so on. But the reluctance of the courts in constitutional cases to give a wide interpretation to the trade and commerce power has been notorious. Recently the Supreme Court of Canada has tended to be pro-national in its views in this regard, but there is a lot of legal debris still in the way of clear assertion of federal authority.

Which leaves the power to legislate with respect to "naturalization and aliens." On the surface, this would appear to be the weakest of the federal arguments but it is probably the strongest. According to the well-established "aspect" doctrine of interpreting the Constitution the courts are bound to look at the "pith and substance" of challenged legislation, and the pith and substance of the Foreign Takeovers Review Act is that it controls certain activities in Canada of aliens, although that term is not used in the legislation.

The scheme of the act turns on the requirement that every "non-eligible person," and every group of persons which includes a "non-eligible person," must advise the government if he proposes to acquire control of a Canadian business enterprise. The government will then allow or deny the acquisition according to its assessment of "significant benefit to Canada" already referred to.

'Non-Eligible Person'

A "non-eligible person" is defined as an individual who is neither a Canadian citizen ordinarily resident in Canada nor a landed immigrant within the meaning of the Immigration Act, other than a landed immigrant who has been in Canada for at least six years but has not become a Canadian citizen. The term also includes any corporation controlled in any manner whatever by a non-eligible person or by a group which includes such an individual.

The legislation would therefore seem to apply to foreigners, or aliens, as those terms are commonly used, although the legal definition must await court determination. Even a judgment that aliens are indeed involved, however, would not necessarily mean a verdict favourable to the federal government.

The leading constitutional cases on the question of the federal power respecting "naturalization and aliens" are old and do not appear to be particularly relevant to the present issue. As Mr. Justice Bora Laskin says in his "Canadian Constitutional Law," difficult questions remain which "admit of no categorical answer." The courts may well find, for example, that the federal power does not extend so far as to take away property and civil rights.

The Hanoi Tail Wags the Dog

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Last week, with the two great nuclear superpowers on the threshold of confrontation, and prospects for a decade of East-West detente in great jeopardy, it became vitally important to sift the minor and ephemeral from the fundamental and significant in Soviet-American relations.

What was genuinely important was not the attempted closure of North Vietnamese ports, nor Hanoi's massive invasion of South Vietnam, nor indeed anything that happened in that frustrating but essentially insignificant corner of Southeast Asia.

What was important was:

- That the Soviet Union and the United States have the power to wipe each other (and much of the rest of the world) off the map.
- That China, with one quarter of the world's people and a developing nuclear force, is hostile to the Soviet Union and has an estimated million men arrayed on the Soviet border.
- That Western Europe is developing an economic and political unity which will one day be an irresistible magnet for Eastern Europe if the future of that continent cannot be stabilized satisfactorily.

Ludicrous

Nothing that Moscow could hope to gain from a confrontation over Vietnam would remotely compare with the benefits she could derive from a detente with the United States. It was ludicrous that a petty and arrogant government in Hanoi should be able to place such prospects in question.

Yet that was exactly what was happening. Just as, at a moment of great frustration, a White House aide remarked that "the foreign policy of the United States rests on the backs of the Vietnamese," so the foreign policy of the Soviet Union seemed to rest on the backs of men in Hanoi.

Evidence that the Hanoi tail was wagging the Soviet dog was vivid. Presidential Assistant Henry Kissinger returned from Moscow April 21 persuaded (as Nixon put it last week) that the Kremlin would use its "constructive influence" to achieve a peace "just to both sides."

It was clear that Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev had told Kissinger the Kremlin would intervene with North Vietnam on behalf of a more meaningful peace negotiation.

But on May 2, when Kissinger met Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris, there was no "give" whatsoever from the North Vietnamese. There was nothing but stubborn repetition of familiar formulae.

Either the Kremlin misled Kissinger,

LE DUC THO
. . . no 'give' at all

or it tried and failed in Hanoi. Duplicity is, of course, always possible; but it would have been so obviously and predictably counterproductive in these circumstances that it is unlikely in the extreme.

Almost certainly, Moscow tried and failed. This is the conclusion which Kissinger later said the American Government had reached, and it is the one which conforms to the largest number of known facts.

The timing of North Vietnam's offensive — just a few weeks before a scheduled Soviet-American summit meeting — is further evidence of Moscow-Hanoi strain. It suggests strongly a wish to disrupt the summit.

Moscow, which very much wanted the meeting with Nixon to take place, could not have approved the kick-off date. The Soviet Union did, of course, provide the weapons which made the invasion possible; but this fact apparently did not provide Moscow enough leverage to determine its timing or to extract from Hanoi, in the midst of successful military operations, a peace offer "just to both sides."

This incapacity of a great power to control the acts of a totally dependent client would be incomprehensible were it not for the fact that the United States, similarly, has been unable to control Saigon despite massive aid over a period of years. Neither Washington nor Moscow feels it can turn off the weapons spigot — and that would be the only real source of effective leverage.

Not So Resentful

There is a concomitant to this reasoning which, if true, is an element of hope in an otherwise bleak picture. Though Moscow dare not itself turn down the spigot, lest it thereby endanger a massive investment of money and prestige, the Kremlin may not — in the last analysis — resent as bitterly as it would like the world to believe the twist in the spigot which the United States has undertaken.

To expect the Soviet Union to challenge the United States, and risk a nuclear showdown, in order to maintain a full flow of supplies to a client which has thumbed its nose at the protector, and which has repeatedly undercut the protector's interests, is expecting a great deal.

Whatever Moscow may say aloud, it is reasonable to believe she will await a more co-operative attitude in Hanoi before going all out on her client's behalf. The Nixon move against Hanoi's ports may, after all, have been appropriately timed.

Tree Planting

Re the controversies between Mr. Bert Schrader and the Sierra Club. They are both dreaming. Mr. Schrader promotes natural regeneration. To discredit manual or other planting, he shows a picture of planting by plane. Plane-planting with a 5 per cent survival would for a density of 500 plants growing to the acre, come to 100 million plants for the 10,000 acres in the Research Forest. The cost of the plants alone with a modest 5 per cent compound interest in a 90-year cycle would come to $256 million. So with cost and time factor Mr. Schrader has made his point.

My point is that manual replanting pays and gives the highest per-acre yield and the shortest rotation. The best site in the world, according to Mr. Schrader (Skagit) could do much better than an acre-volume-value of $500 in 50 years. I can show improved stock of balsams, which for the eighth year in the field showed a per-acre increment which would pay the cost of planting three acres and Norway spruce of the same age, whose 1971 increment would pay for two acres of planting.

In New Brunswick a stand of 51-year-old Norway spruce has a mean per-acre annual increment of 144 feet, in spite of mortality by a hurricane and a much shorter growing season than Skagit. This per-acre-volume-value would in 50 years be about $3,000 and not the $500 per acre achieved by natural regeneration. Besides more than 50 per cent of denuded lands is taken over by weed trees on which now the Forest Service is using defoliants to get a conifer-to-conifer land use.—Alfred Rieboldt, R.R. Woman's View

We are into another year of strikes and discontent. Everyone suffers during the strike with loss of wages and after it with rising costs. If the majority of men want a strike, and you don't, that's too bad for you.

This is the main complaint — strikes and lockouts. I think it is time they were outlawed. There is no excuse on either side for not coming to an agreement. The negotiations go on long enough before the strike date.

I think both the management and unions should be fined for each day a strike or lockout is allowed to continue. Besides the unions and management being fined, each and every union man should be forced to show up to picket every day instead of going on holidays, fishing or generally having a good time. The public yelled like mad when the CBC was struck and the hockey games were not broadcast on TV. It was a different matter then.

The days of the strike are over. It is not the 30s or 40s. It is now the 70s!

It would be interesting to find out how many other women feel the same way. The economy of the country can't stand much more. So make yourselves heard. — Jean Moseley, 502 Ridley Dr.

Nobody Cares About the CBC

By DOUGLAS FISHER

The government made one break for itself, then got another for free, with the recent moves of Jean-Louis Gagnon, head of Information Canada, to Paris and of George Davidson, CBC president, to the UN headquarters staff.

Martin O'Connell, the minister responsible for Information Canada, did not tell the truth when he said there was no connection between Gagnon's appointment to the harmless, low-profile UNESCO post in Paris and dilemma posed by Infocan's apathetic reality.

This was "the hoist." A government cannot fire old Liberals who have done their bit for the party — it can put them at a safe, obscure distance. In Paris, Gagnon will cost the taxpayer only about $60,000 a year in salary and expense account (Gagnon always lives in style) and he is unlikely to ever surface again as a ripple in the symmetrical, administrative structure of Trudeauism.

As for George Davidson, he goes unwept, unhonored and unsung, as the song puts it. But he does leave behind a respect among all who crossed his mandarin's path as the best muffler of issues, the blandest do-nothing of his Ottawa generation.

In all the not very excited speculation over possible successors, the saddest point of the CBC situation is that almost no one in politics really cares much who gets the job. The emission has ended, the oft-touted "mandate" has run out. The CBC is merely a bureaucracy now, its capacity to excite "pro" or "con" feelings of depth almost over. It is almost as inoffensive now as the CNR. There seem to be few in government, politics or out in the country who give a damn about the CBC. It will continue to peter out unless a miracle happens and a savior appears to give it new purpose. The main factors in its continued survival are that it gives 8,000 people-plus jobs. Wiping it out would cause more trouble than it would be worth.

One must always be hesitant to accept a low opinion of an MP from his party colleagues in the House. Most MPs are ambitious — they watch each other warily, particularly if they are fellow-backbenchers in the government party. Therefore, it is hard to judge the potential of David Anderson, the MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, who has decided to seek the leadership of the B.C. Liberal party.

Mr. Anderson seems fairly certain to succeed the retiring incumbent, Dr. Pat McGeer. Mr. Trudeau did not encourage Mr. Anderson to hope for a federal cabinet post in the near future.

When I appraise all the nasty, cutting put-downs I have heard about him from his colleagues over the last few years, Mr. Anderson emerges as the most disliked Liberal within his own caucus since the Hon. Donald MacDonald was remorselessly chewing his way into the cabinet. Both Anderson and another ex-External Affairs type, John Roberts, the Liberal MP for York Simcoe, are thought to be intellectually arrogant, too convinced of their own superiority in relation to both front-and-backbench people.

Anderson was even more sinful than Roberts in that he went his own way with a Parliamentary committee he chaired, publicizing his concern for the environmental menaces which concern British Columbians. He is not a Charlie Van Horne or a Joe Borowski type. He's too stylish and literate.

In a real sense, Mr. Anderson is in a position not unlike that of Mr. Trudeau before he went into the cabinet: That is, the rough-textured, swinging bachelor, the free-spirit intellectual, bold and willing to take chances. He could be a sensation in B.C. politics, despite the sour grapes about him in Ottawa. B.C. may be waiting for a man in a hurry.

ANDERSON

Recently, Alan MacEachen, the Nova Scotia minister, got an aide who is also a former newspaperman into the Senate — Alastair Graham, 42. The minister chortled to me that he was sure I would be pleased at such an appointment. I suggested that two better appointments of journalists would be Charlie Lynch, the Southam columnist, and Jack Webster, the B.C. radio star. Mr. MacEachen agreed that each would lend color to the red chamber. Unfortunately, he added, his writ of senatorial influence doesn't run into New Brunswick (Charlie's home province) or into B.C.

Lawyers Over-Play Hand Against Public Controls

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

To hear John Farris tell it, if the bill before the Quebec National Assembly is passed, we will revert 350 years to the time when courts were ruled by politics and judges such as Lord Coke spent whole careers fighting for judicial independence.

Mr. Farris is president of the Canadian Bar Association and his startling view was delivered to the Canadian Club in Toronto. The effect of the proposed Professions Act in Quebec would be to jeopardize the independence of both bench and bar, he said.

The purpose of the bill is to protect the public against the fraud, malpractice and incompetence of members of 34 professions in Quebec including lawyers, doctors, dentists and architects. Most of the professions are governed under separate laws. The Professions Act is an attempt to centralize regulation.

The bill would turn Quebec's interprofessional council into a legal entity to counsel the government on the running of the professions; it would establish a three-member professions board to oversee the ethics, finances, bill-collecting procedures and indemnity arrangements of professional groups; and for each profession it would create a three-member disciplinary board which, in all professions, would be headed by a government - appointed lawyer. There would be an appeal from a ruling of a disciplinary board to a panel of three Superior Court judges.

The government would set down criteria by which "professional corporations" could be established and membership in a corporation would be required before a person could practice as a professional. Professions which did not have enough funds to meet their obligations or which showed a deficit would be placed under control of the government board.

Generally speaking, the bill would allow the government to maintain stricter control over the activities, disciplinary measures and fee schedules of the 34 professions named.

Mr. Farris is not alone in his opposition. The Quebec Bar Association has placed Quebec lawyers on a collision course with the government. At issue is not only the Professions Act but two additional bills, one of which would establish a new legal aid system under a Legal Services Commission and another which would create a new small claims court where citizens could defend themselves without a lawyer in civil cases involving $300 or less. They object to the proposed legal aid system because, unlike in the Ontario scheme, it will not allow an accused to choose his own lawyer. Legal aid in Quebec will be provided by a salaried staff of about 200.

According to Mr. Farris, transferring responsibility for discipline from the governing body of a profession to what he calls a government-dominated group, will compromise the political independence of lawyers and, since judges are appointed from among lawyers, will threaten the independence of the bench.

There are indeed aspects of the Quebec bills to which objections should be taken. But by predicting a cataclysm Mr. Farris risks rendering himself absurd. Mere government presence does not, of itself, spell the end of independence. For instance, judges are all political appointments. Yet would Mr. Farris argue that they are therefore incapable of independence?

What Mr. Farris fails to recognize is that the public has grown apprehensive over its relations with professionals. It sees how lawyers stick together defensively when the subject of judicial involvement in plea and sentence bargaining comes up. It worries that coroners should have difficulty obtaining the ready co-operation of The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario in investigations of medical mistakes resulting in death. It meets dentists who would whip denturists from the marketplace and so preserve the field of expensive dental plates for themselves.

None of these things would justify passage of Quebec's Professions Act. What they do is create a skepticism toward the professions that for a long time had been lacking. A skepticism that asks why there should not be more public involvement in the running of the professions.

A skepticism that can brand as utter nonsense the claim by Mr. Farris that the desire of Ontario lawyers for the participation of the public in their affairs was demonstrated by their acceptance of Law Society Council to advise the cabinet on professional matters. The Law Society of Upper Canada agreed to the council as a compromise to keep the Government from insisting that lay members of the public be allowed to sit on the law society's governing body.

Until lawyers offer less transparent arguments for their opposition, they can expect little support from the public.

Only Self-Interest Spurs Foreign Aid

By RICHARD GOTT
New Statesman

SANTIAGO, Chile — The aid merchants and development enthusiasts who hoped that UNCTAD II would be the occasion for the Third World to express its bitterness and anger at the apathy of the rich must be gravely disappointed.

After reading or listening to nearly 100 speeches, I cannot honestly report that anyone here has got up much of a head of steam about what the Tanzanian delegate described as "the increasingly iniquitous status quo."

The only outspoken speeches have been made by Salvador Allende, Raul Roa from Cuba, and the Algerian delegate. Even the Chinese were exceptionally restrained in their analysis, and so far no single person or issue has succeeded in dominating the conference.

Some of the prime movers of UNCTAD III did a lot of spadework beforehand, urging delegates to play everything very cool, in the belief that the rich would be more impressed by rational debate than by emotive polemic.

Perhaps the tactic was right, but the fact remains that few delegates, whether polite or rude, are able to conjure up compelling arguments likely to commend themselves to the selfish advanced world. The delegate from the Third World stands up and says rather boldly: 'Unless you help us, we shall . . .' and then his voice begins to trail away.

In the old days the speech wrote itself. "If you don't help us, we shall join the Soviet camp," and the rich rushed to open their money bags. But no one can make that speech today and if they did we would all roar with laughter.

In a world of superpower co-existence, the threat to change sides has become meaningless. The West spends much time bemoaning the fact that the Soviet Union doesn't do more for the developing countries, and the warm welcome for China was about the one issue which has united rich and poor alike.

Seduced by Violence

A more sophisticated and up-to-date version of the threat to join the Soviet camp is the warning that unless the advanced world changes heart and becomes more responsive to the present needs of formerly exploited societies, revolutionary violence in the Third World will become the order of the day. "Is it any wonder that the peoples of the developing countries," said the delegate from Trinidad and Tobago, "are becoming increasingly seduced by philosophies of violence as the only effective means of transforming their desperate conditions?" Salvador Allende said much the same thing in his inaugural speech, and indeed, the situation in much of both the Caribbean and Latin America — notably Argentina and Uruguay — gives some validity to the argument. But the rich countries are basically unimpressed because they have enough violence to cope with on their doorstep without bothering themselves about the problems of some distant land.

The only argument left to the Third World, one which only a very few perspicacious delegates seem to have latched on to, and one which seems to me to be by far the most cogent, is as follows: "If you don't reform the system, you yourselves will be in the soup as well as us." It was first voiced by Tanzania, whose delegate spoke of "an integrated global process" of exploitation, like "a monstrously self-propelling machine of gigantic proportions."

He pointed out that "even well-meaning earnest leaders in the industrialized world who want to arrest this awful process can do very little to reverse the machine and to prevent it from continuing to accelerate 'till it destroys those so-called industrial countries."

A World Crisis

Tanzania of course, like most of Britain's colonies, fights shy of using Marxist terminology, but the fact is that a number of countries — even military governments in Latin America — are beginning to realize that they are the victims of the operations of a global system which, if you live anywhere except Britain and the United States, it is perfectly sage to describe as "imperialist." And this system is itself showing no signs of fragility. Indeed, listening to the spokesmen of the advanced world producing their arguments for the rejection of the "link" between SDRs and development financing, one realizes that some of them really are serious when they claim that such a step might have unforeseeable consequences which they have as yet been unable to compute. There is a world crisis on — and the West and China know it. But it remains to be seen who will be able to use it to their advantage.

The only aspect of the crisis that the rich world is able to perceive clearly is that of the environment. Poverty abroad is somewhat intangible, but smog at home is pretty real. It is at last beginning to dawn on the Nordic countries — those traditional pace-setters — that lifting the Third World to the level of consumption of the rich would have dire consequences.

"Scientists warn us," said the Norwegian delegate, "that if general economic growth is combined with demographic increase at a rate of doubling the world population within 35 years or so, then we shall sooner or later reach a point of serious depletion of some of the most elementary resources needed for human life."

Blame the Rich

The Danish delegate placed the blame more squarely on the shoulders of the rich. "The enormous consumption of natural resources to satisfy the whims of the consumers of durable goods in the richest countries may in the end exhaust the earth's stock of vital raw materials and even its energy reserves." The Danish conclusion was that "a redistribution of income in the world community is at least as important as improvement in social structure within nations."

These are of course but straws in the wind, and whether they will grow in size and strength depends much on what happens at the UN environment conference in Stockholm in June.

Not everyone is as intelligent about the subject as the Danes and the Norwegians. The Dutch delegate, for example, seemed to think that the environment and the development problem could be solved at one blow by hiving off some of the smellier industries in the rich countries to the Third World.

He had obviously not been in Santiago long enough to realize that the city's sensational backdrop—the Cordillera de Los Andes — has been hidden throughout the conference by the smog of industrial pollution, far worse here than, say, in London.

Let Them Have Garbage

RUSSELL BAKER

WASHINGTON — The biggest problem facing us today is not Communism but garbage disposal. The government has been too slow to grasp this reality. Governments, maybe because they are so often dominated by military men, are almost always slow to leave the comfortable unreality of the past for the uncertainty of the present.

The futility of the American war policy in Vietnam results from the reluctance of a series of presidents to look upon Southeast Asia in realistic, contemporary terms; that is, not as a problem in the suppression of Communism, but as an opportunity for the disposal of garbage.

This last week; for example, while garbage levels continued to rise all over the United States and in the adjacent waters and air, President Nixon concentrated on the question whether Communism could be successfully opposed by dropping more bombs on Southeast Asia.

The history of bombing that part of the world strongly suggests that it is futile. Since becoming president, Nixon has bombed it at the rate of a ton a minute, yet the forces of Communism are now staging their most effective attack of the past four years. Mr. Nixon must feel intensely frustrated as he contemplates the wasted years, wasted money and wasted bombs.

It is an unhappy world that contains an American president with a case of intense frustration. American presidents have such large volumes of explosive forces at their disposal; intense frustration may provoke them to seek relief by using it. This can do no one any good. There can be little relief for the president's frustration, however, as long as he adheres to the outmoded view that the war exists to defeat Communism.

The sensible modern way to think of war is as a garbage-disposal system. War as a device for defeating this or that doctrine has rarely, if ever, worked. Fascism survives despite the Russian revolution; the Protestant heresy despite several hundred years of European bloodletting on God's behalf. No wonder war has become intellectually indefensible.

Once we grasp the new reality, however, war becomes respectable again. It is really a splendid way to dispose of garbage. It may conceivably become the only way to dispose of garbage. It may become as respectable to attack remote foreign states in order to dump garbage on them as it once was to attack them in order to rob them.

Consider the advantages of giving up the Vietnam war as a fight to defeat a political doctrine and using it instead as a solution to our garbage-disposal problem. We should instantly enjoy great monetary savings, for those immensely expensive bombs now being wasted in the futile attempt to blow up an idea would no longer be required.

Instead, the B52s would be loaded with all the garbage American know-how could put aboard them. Navy warships would have their magazines packed with the effluvium of the mightiest garbage-producing power the world has ever known.

Our bombing may, as some reports have it, actually improve fighting morale among our bombed enemy. It is doubtful that they would feel quite so chipper about carrying on after a year or two of having our garbage dumped on them at the rate of a ton a minute.

We would have to give them fair warning, of course, give them half a chance to surrender first. Then we would have to escalate carefully to keep the respect of mankind. The first attacks might be confined to naval dumpings of empty beer cans, plastic bleach bottles and broken glass along Vietnamese beaches. From the air B-52s might start dumping thirty-ton loads of frozen TV dinners that nobody back home could stand to eat.

In the next phase, whole auto junk yards would be dumped on the outskirts of Hanoi until — if they refused to surrender — Hanoi looked just like Chicago. Tons of old newspapers could be splattered along the Ho Chi Minh Trail. The DMZ could be blasted indiscriminately, day and night, with thousands of tons of Lyndon Johnson's memoirs, Nixon campaign speeches, books about Kennedys, broken records by Beatles imitators, no-return bottles, disposable diapers, throwaway pens, aerosol cans.

As the ultimate threat — the unthinkable nuclear bomb of our refuse arsenal— we could hold in reserve all defeated presidential candidates. Vance Hartke. Sam Yorty. Edmund Muskie. Later perhaps, George Wallace and Hubert Humphrey. What a drop!

Would it stop communism? Certainly not. It hasn't stopped capitalism, has it? Would it be immoral? Perhaps, although it is certainly no more immoral to dump a rusted set of York bar bells from 35,000 feet than it is to dump thirty tons of exploding metal. The president — and this is the best part — would feel better immediately. America would be solving a problem.

IMPRESSIVE CROWD of more than 1,600 attended Sunday's session of Jehovah's Witnesses' annual spring assembly, held in S. J. Willis Junior High School. Guest speaker was Donald Clegg, of Toronto, district supervisor. The session was last of a three-day series that began Friday evening.

Backfire Warning

VANCOUVER (CP) — The leader of the Western Canada Party warned British Columbia teachers Sunday to give up a campaign to defeat the Social Credit government in B.C.

Lloyd Bartlett of Edmonton, here for a party strategy session, said the B.C. Teachers Federation might come out on the short end of the stick if it continues acting politically.

"We've found that this type of reaction that's going on in B.C. went on in Saskatchewan and it backfired," Bartlett said.

"One of our indirect platforms is that we're trying to stop this political action in schools."

Party executives Sunday chose the mah they hope will build up public support for those candidates by appointing G. G. Melrose of Trail interim regional vice-president with responsibility for establishing constituency organizations.

Wife Dies in Flaming Car

TORONTO (CP) — A 16-year-old wife and mother died screaming in a flaming car at the top of a gas station hoist Sunday while her husband vainly tried to open the car door.

Edna Graziano, separated from her 16-year-old husband Michael for economic reasons, was visiting him, he explained, because "she was lonely . . . there was no one to talk to."

She was sitting in her husband's car listening to the tape recorder while he worked below, putting extension on the schock absorbers.

Michael said his wife "fell asleep while the car was on the hoist." He finished his work lowered the hoist and heard a bump.

"I let the car back up in the air. The clamp on the gas tank had pulled out and the gas started pouring out."

He started hosing the gas down.

"I thought of my wife and went to let the hoist down. Then I heard a loud pop, like a light bulb breaking. The flames shot across the floor and under my feet . . . I stomped out the fire and then grabbed the door handle, but it burned my hands. I tried . . I really tried . . . but I coulan't get it and I could hear her screams.

"We were planning to go back together in a week's time."

The young woman's death and the fire are under investigation by the Ontario fire marshal's office. The cause of the gasoline ignition is still unknown.

The victim's father, who has a heart condition, was scheduled for an operation today. Relatives told him about his daughter's death Sunday night and the operation was cancelled.

TV's Hoss Cartwright Dead at 43

HOLLYWOOD — Dan Blocker, whose portrayal of the gentle, hulking Hoss Cartwright on the Bonanza television series made him one of North America's best-known actors, will be buried in the small Texas town where he grew up.

Blocker, 43, died Saturday of two blood clots in the lung.

A family spokesman said Blocker developed an infection after undergoing gall bladder surgery May 1. He died a few hours after returning to hospital.

Tentative plans call for the 300-pound six-foot-four actor to be buried beside his father this week in O'Donnell, Texas.

Blocker's bulk and West Texas drawl disguised his being a millionaire and former school teacher. But his friends said the broad humor and tenderness he displayed before 400 million viewers in 80 countries for 13 years as a son of Ben Cartwright on the Ponderosa Ranch were characteristic of the man.

GREAT ENERGY

Julian Goodman, president of NBC, which televises the western series, recalled that Blocker was "a man of great energy, but he was a gentleman who refused to allow his sons to own a gun or go hunting — until the animals learn to shoot back." Blocker once said the amount of money he made ($30,000 for each Bonanza episode) was "absolutely immoral."

And, of devoting most of his career to one part, he once remarked: "Let's face it. I sold out. For money."

After college in Texas, Blocker served as first sergeant in the army.

He taught in New Mexico and then began work on a doctorate in education at the University of California at Los Angeles.

DAN BLOCKER

To help support his family he looked to acting, and quickly got roles in Gunsmoke and other television series.

He attributed his success to his size: "if I'd been an average-size guy, I never would've stood a chance. There were only a few big guys around."

Blocker was married for 20 years to his five-foot-three college sweetheart, Dolphia, who was with him when he died. They had twin daughters and two sons.

Lorne Greene, the Canadian-born actor who plays Ben Cartwright in the series, said:

"His sudden loss comes as such a great personal shock to me that I cannot properly put it into mere words . . .

AUCKLAND — New Zealand's Supreme Court dismissed an appeal today by women's liberation champion Germaine Greer who was fined $50 for using obscene language at a public lecture.

Judge Duncan McMullin ruled that a four-letter word used by Miss Greer was "contrary to accepted standards at a public meeting."

Judge McMullin said the word used by Miss Greer might be found acceptable by some persons but others would find it "a grubby term."

Those at a public meeting were entitled to expect that the speaker would be able to express herself without resorting to such language, he said.

MOSCOW — It was no time for a wrong number. Inspecting communications lines in Eastern Siberia, Vladimir Mitrofanov was chased by a just-awakened, hungry bear.

Mitrofanov scrambled up the nearest telephone pole, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said. The bear rose on its hind legs and began shaking the pole. As the pole swayed, Mitrofanov hooked up the portable telephone he carried and announced his plight. A rescue helicopter swept in. Its crew frightened the bear away with rifle shots.

CINCINNATI — "This is a holdup," the young man told Lillian Sanford when he entered the Grote bakery Thursday. "Don't scream and don't run."

Mrs. Sanford, 55, screamed and ran to the rear of the store. There she fainted. She later told police that when she came to, the key to the cash register was jammed in the lock and the robber was gone. No cash was missing.

CHICHESTER, England — Mick Roche, 31, and Charlie Marshall, 22, stole a bus to return to their native Ireland, a court was told.

A detective said the two had been discussing how they would go home and one of them got up from his seat in a restaurant and returned a short time later driving a bus. Police eventually stopped the pair after they crashed into two police cars.

BARNSLEY, England — Frank Bottom became Frank Emerson. "People may not understand why I changed my name," he said, "but it's such a relief."

Emerson said jokes about his name started when he was in school and that his daughter Marie Rose used to come home in tears because classmates called her "Rosy Bottom."

PITTSBURGH — Mrs. Margaret Hartzell spent Mother's Day in a hospital where she gave birth last week to her 17th child.

"Do you think it would be terrible for a mother not to miss Mother's Day at home?" she asked with a mischievous smile. "It really is quiet and peaceful here, and I am enjoying the rest," she said.

METZ, France — Farmer Jean Limousin has been tilling his cornfield at Cesse, Meuse Department, for years without noticing anything unusual.

Things changed when his plow got stuck. Further digging brought in French Army bomb disposal experts. Limousin's plow had unearthed a stock of 10 tons of First World War shells — in perfect working order.

Paris Visit Begins

PARIS — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrived here under grey skies today for an official visit marking Britain's move to join the European Common Market.

The Queen and Philip were welcomed at Orly Airport by President George Pompidou who last year dropped long-time French objections to British entry into the six-nation Market.

Union Jacks and French flags flew at the airport and lined the broad Avenue des Champs Elysees for the Queen's five-day state visit. Paris newspapers published Welcome to Elizabeth headlines in English.

During her visit, the Queen will stay in a 17th-century palace built by the "sun king," Louis XIV, as a place to hold parties and escape from court formality.

At the Grand Trianon Palace in Versailles the Queen will find herself surrounded by a carefully restored reflection of French glory in architecture, art and furnishings, with reminders of Louis XIV in the three-centuries-old panelling and of Napoleon in the first-empire style of many rooms.

Although much smaller then the nearby main Palace of Versailles, the Grand Trianon still has 70 rooms.

STONES SET TO ROLL

LONDON — The Rolling Stones plan to hit the road next year with a rock 'n' roll circus, crossing Britain in a special train full of musicians, monkeys and midgets. Mick Jagger said today.

"The whole thing will be a sort of rock 'n' rock carnival with games, circus acts and things like that," Jagger said.

The Stones will headline the planned carnival show with another British rock group, The Who.

Performances will be held in a gigantic tent capable of holding 10,000 fans.

Curtis Boost for Regions

DEDUCT HOME-TAX PLEA

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

POWELL RIVER — Deputy ministers and other senior civil servants in the B.C. government "resent and resist" the existence of regional districts, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis charged Saturday.

Curtis, chairman of the Capital Regional District Board, told delegates to the annual conference of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities that these civil servants must realize the regional districts do exist and that they represent the regional point of view.

"It seems to me that the minister of municipal affairs (Dan Campbell) has finally abandoned his attempts to get the two parties together.

"He has introduced this thing called regionalsim and now he is running into problems with the senior civil service in getting the idea across."

Campbell needs to tell government personnel that they should co-operate with officials and elected representatives at the regional level, Curtis said. "He should tell them not to lecture us any more."

The Saanich mayor was speaking to a resolution sponsored by Alberni-Clayoquot regional district, which urged Campbell to promote more effective liaison between regional districts and the provincial government's resource departments, "to help ensure the viability of the regional district concept."

COMPLAINTS

The resolution complained that while regional districts have been given the authority for land use planning, many B.C. government departments appear to ignore regional planning objectives.

Port Alberni Ald. George McKnight said the Alberni-Clayoquot district has been referring requests for leases of Crown land to local planning commissions which deal with them, make recommendations and then discover that the applications have already been approved.

"Their recommendation turns out to be simply superfluous," he said.

"For the municipal affairs department to bring in necessary legislation to get regional districts into the planning business and then have that or some other department ignore the whole thing is simply ludicrous."

After Sidney Mayor Stan Dear warned that the wording of the resolution was too weak, and that it would receive "short shrift" from the minister, the resolution was adopted with the instruction that the executive should rephrase it "in the strongest possible terms."

The Alberni-Clayoquot district also presented two other resolutions, both of which were adopted.

One urged the provincial government to set up a special fund to cover the collection costs involved in disposal of derelict car bodies.

The other asked for "a commitment" from the government to provide an all-weather access road to the site of the proposed regional park at Mount Arrowsmith.

District chairman Les McKinnon told delegates that the provincial government's Operation S.A.M. for disposal of old car hulks doesn't relieve municipalities of the actual cost of picking up the wrecks and taking them to the central collection point.

In his district, McKinnon said, these costs were working out to between $8 and $10 per unit collected and he felt there should be some way of reimbursing the local authority concerned.

SPECIAL LEVY

After further discussion the resolution was amended to recommend the creation of a special levy covering such costs, which delegates said could take the form of a levy on the annual licence fee or a supplement to the original registration fee for new vehicles.

But both Curtis and Oak Bay Mayor Elford disagreed with the principle of asking the provincial government to assume responsibility for meeting collection costs.

"When we turn to the government for assistance we should do so where it really counts," Curtis said.

Only two of the 17 resolutions debated during the day-long conference were defeated. A total of 69 delegates from 24 Vancouver Island municipalities attended.

If the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities gets its way, municipal property taxes will be deductible for income tax purposes.

A Central Saanich resolution urging the concession received majority support — 21 to 13 — at the association's annual conference in Powell River on Saturday.

The resolution said federal government policies are indirectly responsible for rising costs to municipalities, and that Ottawa provides little direct support to them

Municipal taxes can be deducted from declared income in Britain, Australia and the United States, the resolution said.

Vancouver Ald. Ernie Broome, president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, told delegates that the province of Ontario has already made arrangements for such deductions to be allowed, while Manitoba is about to follow suit.

Also adopted by the conference was a Central Saanich resolution urging that interest on municipal bonds should be tax-free, so as to encourage private investments.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis successfully moved an amendment to include provision for a "reasonable limitation" on the total amount of bonds purchased by any individual or corporation.

Curtis said he suggested this to avoid the failings of the American system, where wealthy individuals and large corporations use the tax concession as a "dodge."

Penalty Points 'No Deterrent'

POWELL RIVER — Court fines should be reimposed for the traffic violations of careless driving, speeding and failing to stop at signals, municipal and regional politicians agreed here Saturday.

Delegates to the annual conference of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities passed an Oak Bay resolution calling for the double deterrent of court fines plus the present penalty point system.

The resolution said the 1969 change from fining for traffic offences to imposing penalty points on driving records has "not acted as a deterrent," and the three categories of offences "appear to contribute considerably to the accident rate."

She told delegates that out of 185 traffic accidents in Oak Bay in 1968, 106 or 57 per cent were caused by careless driving, speeding or ignoring halt signals.

In 1971, 152 of the total 209 accidents — or 72 per cent — were due to these three types of offences.

Of the three categories the one that had increased most was careless driving, she said, "with "tailgating" a major offender.

"We believe that if you add a fine that will hit people in their pocketbook to the penalty points system it will be far more effective in cutting down accidents caused by these driving offences," Mrs. Elford said.

She said the Oak Bay police chief had told her that this view was held by "police chiefs throughout British Columbia."

Mayor Bill Moore of Courtenay went along with the resolution but for different motives. Court fines should be reintroduced not as a deterrent, he said, "but to put more money in the municipal coffers" to offset the ever-increasing cost of police protection.

Another Oak Bay resolution to win support from the conference was one urging the federal government to continue its special work incentive programs, but to give municipalities much earlier notification of these.

Mrs. Elford said that to take advantage of the programs with regard to larger projects, municipalities needed to spend money on architects' drawings well in advance of the actual starting date.

Last year the programs were announced in October to become effective in November, involving municipalities in "a lot of fast footwork," she added.

William Head Escapee Shot

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of three men who escaped the William Head prison on Vancouver Island five weeks ago has been charged with the attempted murder of three policemen after a high-speed chase and shoot-out in Vancouver's East end.

The charges were read Sunday to James Howard Smith, 22, in Vancouver General Hospital where he is being detained under heavy police guard.

He was reported in satisfactory condition and undergoing treatment for a shattered jaw suffered when police shot him Saturday night as a man attempted to flee on foot at the end of the car chase.

He succeeds Central Saanich Mayor A. M. Galbraith. Elected vice-president was Nanaimo Ald. Alexander Mackay.

Elected to the executive were Les McKinnon, chairman of Alberni-Clayoquot regional district; Duncan Mayor Jim Quaife, Victoria Ald. Tom Christie and Cumberland Mayor Bill Moncrief.

'Shorts' Unfairly Blamed For Starting Stock Rumors

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

William Irwin, provincial superintendent of brokers, says that often short sellers unfairly get the blame when a stock plunges and investors take a loss.

Rumors, he said, are the real culprit.

Rumors send prices down, rumors send prices up.

"We can't do anything about that. There always have been rumors in the market."

He was commenting in an interview on a series of statement made by Vancouver Stock Exchange President Thomas Dohm who, angered by a report that short sellers were forcing down the price of Afton and Leemac, wondered aloud why short selling was permitted at all.

Later Dohm amended his remarks to decry rumors about Afton and Leemac which may have been spread by persons who had sold the two stocks short in hopes of buying them back at lower prices. He added that short selling, itself, is a necessary and legitimate practice on a stock exchange.

Irwin, head of the provincial securities exchange commission, said he fully supports the view that short selling is both a legitimate and necessary function of a stock exchange.

ACTIONS DEFINED

Actions of short sellers are clearly defined and controlled.

But there is no way to control rumors associated with a stock exchange and these might send prices down or up.

"When an investor loses money he often feels hard done by and sometimes he is. But the short sellers often unfairly get the blame for his losses," Irwin said.

More often the investor should blame himself for listening to rumors.

Short sellers must report their activities on a semi-monthly basis to the VSE and to the superintendent of brokers.

As long as they continue to do this they are operating withing regulations, Irwin said.

A REVERSE

Short selling is a reverse sale of a stock.

In a normal or long sale, a person has say 1,000 shares of Afton Mines which he bought at $2 ($2,000 plus commission) and he now sells the shares for $12 ($12,000 minus commission). He has a clear profit of almost $10,000.

Having sold the stock he must deliver the certificate to the purchaser within three days.

In the case of the short seller, he has no shares of Afton Mines. But he looks at the price of $12 per share and thinks that price just might come down.

So he tells his broker to sell 1,000 shares of Afton Mines "short" at $12. Before the broker accepts the order he must receive margin from the short seller. Rules vary but some brokers ask for as little as 50 per cent.

PAY HALF

So before he does anything else, the short seller must deposit 50 per cent of the selling price or $6,000 with the broker. Then 1,000 shares of Afton are sold for the short seller for $12,00, less of course, commission.

Both the $12,000 and the $6,000 margin are retained by the broker as protection.

Three days after the sale, the purchaser asks for the 1,000 shares of Afton he bought. The seller doesn't have any. But his broker loans him 1,000 shares to give to the purchaser.

Where does the broker get the stock?

UNTOUCHED

He has a number of clients buying and selling stock who keep all their stock certificates on deposit in the brokers's office. Many of the certificates are filed away for years untouched.

It is from these files that the broker borrows stock for a few weeks or months and later returns it — and of course if the owner asks for it the broker obtains stock from another client's folder to make up the shortage.

It is just like the $20 you deposit in a savings account. That particular $20 is long gone the minute the bank receives it . . . it is loaned out or some other customer withdraws it.

But you are entitled to $20 any time you ask for it.

So the stock certificate on deposit are kept in ciruculation to meet the demands of short sellers.

MAKES PROFIT

If, at some future time, Aftron is selling for $7, then the short seller can buy it back for a healthy profit. He would pay $7,000 plus commission for the stock and having sold it for $12,000 would have a profit of almost $5,000.

The stock certificate he bought would go to the broker who would put it in the file of the client whose certificate he made use of for the sale.

At that point the short seller can withdraw his $5,000 profit and extract the $6,000 deposit he was using for margin and the deal is completed.

However if, instead of going down, the price of Afton climbs to say $16, then the short seller would get very nervous. But not nearly as nervous as the broker.

The broker, having borrowed a client's stock for the sale, must protect everyone in the deal.

Above all, he must have enough funds on hand to buy Afton on the market at any time if necessary.

MORE MARGIN

If the price went to $16 he would ask for more margin. The short seller's deposit would have to be increased from $6,000 (50 per cent of the $12,000 sale) to $8,000 (50 per cent of market value).

And if the price continued to climb he likely would tell the short seller he made a rather bad guess and instantly buy 1,000 Afton at market and pay for it out of the $12,000 plus the $8,000 margin funds.

At every step all participants are fully protected — except the short seller.

When his guess has gone sour he's the one who phones his broker every three minutes and who paces the floor anxiously long after the market has closed for the day.

This compares with first-quarter earnings last year of $2,220,000 or 8.1 cents a share.

The company said the decrease in cash flow resulted from lower investment income and higher operating expenses which also accounted for a portion of the net earnings decrease.

The other contributors to a 46-per-cent reduction in earnings were increased depletion charges on oil and gas properties and higher abandonment charges on mining properties.

'Silent Vigil' Protests Rubber Stamp Abortions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Several hundred anti-abortion demonstrators held a one-hour "silent vigil" outside Vancouver General Hospital Sunday, protesting what they call the "rubber stamp" attitude of hospital committees on abortion.

"As well as paying tribute to Mother's Day, we were expressing our sorrow at the 2,000 abortions performed at VGH in 1971," an official of the Pro-Life Action Committee said.

Port Expansions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Otto Lang, justice minister with responsibility for the Canadian Wheat Board, agreed that large expenditures will be necessary to increase the grain-handling capability of west coast ports.

The minister specifically named the ports at Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Roberts Bank as ones needing attention.

Self-Evaluation

NARAMATA (CP) — Rt. Rev. Fraser Berry, bishop of the Anglican Diocese of Kootenay, Saturday charged his parishes to evaluate their situations, project their goals and plan to meet them.

It was Bishop Berry's first charge to a synod since he was elected Bishop of Kootenay last year.

Bishop Berry offered the parishes the use of trained consultants to help ask the right questions in their self-evaluation, to develop goals and to seek the required resources to carry them out.

Dig Up History

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eleven Simon Fraser University students left today on a three-month expedition into the history of British Columbia Indians.

Under the direction of two SFU archaeology professors, the students will participate in an archaeology field-study course, and dig for Indian artifacts at the small coastal communities of Kwatna and Imsquit, about 400 miles north of Vancouver.

Against Arms Sales

SARDIS (CP)— Delegates to the 12th annual meeting of the British Columbia Voice of Women during the weekend sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau protesting Canadian arms sales to the U.S.

The message said: "In light of overwhelming world opinion against American intervention in Vietnam, we urge that you as our prime minister stop the sale of war commodities to the U.S."

Royal Roads Plans Two Ceremonies

The format of end-of-year ceremonies at Royal Roads Military College has been extended this year to include ceremonies on two days.

The first takes place 6:45 p.m. Thursday, May 25 and will be open to parents and invited guests of the officer cadets.

The presentation of academic awards on the Castle lawn will be followed by a gymastic display. On completion of the display a sunset ceremony will be carried out.

The second ceremony will take place the following day at 2 p.m., taking the form of the traditional end-of-year review and academic procession. Rear-Admiral R. W. Murdoch, commander of Canadian defence education establishments, will be the reviewing officer.

This ceremony is open to the public. Spectators should be in their seats by 1:30 p.m.

PUBLIC TO JUDGE ART SHOW

The controversy generated by the Greater Victoria Art Gallery's annual Vancouver Island Show has prompted a new approach to this year's show set to open May 30.

Instead of hiring one or two judges as in past years, the public will be asked to vote, the painting with the most ballots being the winner.

The show is billed as an "Omnium Gatherum" which the dictionary defines as a party or medley to which everyone is invited.

Painters on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands are invited to submit one painting each to the show. All works submitted will be displayed.

Because of the space limitation only watercolors, oils, pastels, acrylics and collages will be accepted.

Previous shows have drawn criticism from artists who complained certain work was not accepted because some judges tend to favor a certain style.

For the first 10 days of the Omnium Gatherum visitors will have the opportunity of casting a vote for the painting they like best.

The votes will be counted and the winners name announced in a ceremony set for 4:30 p.m. June 11. Entry forms are available from the gallery.

$1 Million Damage

VANCOUVER (CP) — Damage was estimated at more than $1 million in a three-alarm fire that destroyed a warehouse here Saturday. The fire at the Ellett Copper and Brass Co. is believed to have started in a garbage container behind the plant. Fire officials have not discounted the possibility of arson. There were no injuries.

VICTORY SIGNAL is flashed by Vaughan Trapp after extra-hole decision over Al Zimmerman (right) in Times Vancouver Island Open golf final Sunday at Royal Colwood. It was Trapp's third title triumph.

Trapp Takes Island Open With Extra-Hole Victory

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

The Times Trophy, the champion's blazer and the biggest share of the prize money went to Vaughan Trapp while the remarkable Al Zimmerman captured the gallery's heart when the two professionals decided the 1972 Vancouver Island Open match-play golf championship Sunday.

Trapp was the day's big winner. But a suspicion exists that Zimmerman, who forced the issue to the 37th — an extra hole — wasn't much of a loser.

When you're 63, like Zimmerman, and go 37 holes as did the "retired" pro, you have to be a winner in the Dept. of Respect.

That's how it turned out Sunday as the 23rd annual Island Open wound up at Royal Colwood.

Blessed with ideal weather conditions, the competitors made it an extra-hole day. The handicap finalists also worked overtime before Alastair Fulton stopped Gorge Vale clubmate Bill Burrows on the 38th to lay claim to the Hugh Francis Trophy.

Trapp, coming up with important clutch shots when he needed them, fashioned a stirring comeback to spoil Zimmerman's hopes of becoming the oldest player to win the Island Open.

Five down after the morning 18 holes and six in arrears after 23, the 28-year-old assistant pro claimed seven of the final 13 holes in the regulation distance to carry the battle to the 37th.

The late turnabout might indicate Zimmerman may have been caught up in his own weariness.

Al Made Great Recovery on 36th

His train of thought was interrupted on the 19th and again on the 31st hole, he said. Each time, it cost him the hole.

The 31st was disastrous. One up, he was confronted with an easy approach shot to the green. He hit the shot poorly and the ball caught a water-filled ditch. That allowed Trapp to square the match.

Trapp went one up on the par-three 33rd when Zimmerman three-putted, but then Al showed his rebounding qualities. After halving the 34th, Zimmerman squared the match with a 14-foot birdie putt on the 35th.

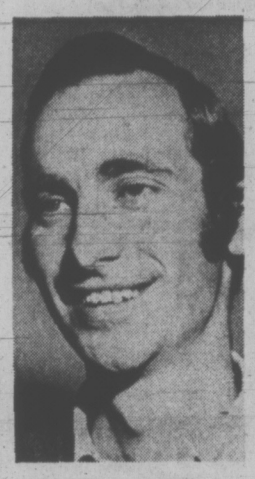
On the 36th, a large gallery was ready to concede Trapp a victory when Vaughan plunked his second shot about seven feet from the cup while Zimmerman's approach overshot the green and rolled down a pathway leading to the Colwood pro shop.

Zimmerman was granted a free drop off the path, but the task appeared hopeless . . . a blind shot to the green from halfway down the steep hill. Zimmerman executed a fine recovery, running the ball to within 12 feet of the cup.

Zimmerman ran in the 12-footer for his par four, and the match moved to the 37th when Trapp's seven-foot try for a birdie hung on the edge of the cup.

On the par-four, 391-yard extra hole, both missed the green with their approaches. Trapp overshot the green while Zimmerman was off to the left. Zimmerman chipped to within eight feet while Trapp ran his third shot to within 30 inches.

Al rolled his putt for a par six inches past the hole. Trapp made his par to wrap up the victory.



ALASTAIR FULTON
. . . handicap champion

A big turning point for Trapp was the 30th. Trapp had sliced into Zimmerman's six-hole advantage by winning five of six holes — from the 24th to the 29th.

Vaughan Five Down in Morning

Still, Zimmerman was one up and appeared headed for a slide-ending win when he chipped his third shot to within a foot of the cup for what was to be an easy par.

Trapp, in the meantime, overshot the green with his second. The ball was barely visible after rolling into deep rough in a pit behind the green. Trapp, however, pulled off a superb recovery by sending the ball to about six feet from the hole. Trapp then dropped the hole-saving six-footer for a half.

That sent the two on to the 31st . . . with Trapp still one down, rather than two down.

Zimmerman turned in a strong morning performance to jump into the five-up lead by the lunch break. He scored 17 pars and a birdie for an approximate one-under-par 69. The lone birdie, as it turned out, was without value because Trapp won the 14th par-five 14th hole with an eagle three.

Trapp scored an approximate 75 in the morning and came in with a 72 in the afternoon against Zimmerman's 77.

The 31-year-old Fulton squandered an early four-hole advantage in the handicap final but bounced back to win on the 38th when Burrows caught a sand trap with his second shot on the par-four hole.

Fulton, an eight-handicapper, had to give his southpaw rival two strokes each round.

Fulton was four up after 10 holes but Burrows came back to even the match by the lunch break. Burrows went two up after 27 holes but a par on the 30th and a birdie two on the 33rd enabled Fulton to square the match and force the extra two-hole march.

Blazing Unser Run Snaps Indy Record

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bobby Unser and his snow white Eagle-Offenhauser virtually locked up the pole position for the 56th Indianapolis 500-mile race with a record-breaking 10-mile qualifying run Sunday.

The 1968 Indy winner averaged 195.950 miles per hour for the four laps around the old Indianapolis Motor Speedway with a best lap of 196.678.

By comparison, last year's polesitter, Peter Revson, set the previous best mark of 178.696 for the 10-mile distance and 179.354 for one lap.

Unser will not officially claim the pole position, and about $10,000 in prizes that go with it, until qualification runs are completed by other drivers who were ready to go when the rain-shortened session ended.

They included Revson and three-time winner A. J. Foyt Jr., who blew an engine trying to qualify Saturday.

Malloy suffered a compound fracture of the right arm, fractures of the hip and legs as well as second degree burns to the hands and feet after crashing into a concrete retaining wall and is listed in critical condition.

In the only other major motorsports event of the day, France's Jean Pierre Beltoise led from start to finish in a BRM V-12 to win the Monaco Grand Prix Formula I race in pouring rain. Belgian ace Jacky Ickx placed second in a Ferrari and Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil finished third in a JPS Lotus to increase his lead in the world driving championship series.

Perhaps if fewer fans had showed up Saturday night for Victoria's home debut in the Pacific Northwest International Fastball League, Bate Construction might have won its weekend series with Seattle Pay N' Pak.

Which is another way of saying Victoria had opening-night jitters and were soundly thrashed 10-1 in the first game of an opening double-header before 736 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

Bates went 13 innings before dropping the second game 5-3, but rebounded to sweep Sunday's twin-bill with Seattle before 421 fans and pull back into a first-place tie with the Americans.

"I was tight and felt a little nervous," said Bates' pitcher Lorne Auvache who was bombed out in the first inning of the opening game but returned to go the distance in Sunday's second game.

The veteran right-hander, who has been on two Canadian championship teams and pitched for Canada internationally, scattered seven hits. His clubmates took advantage of Seattle's sloppy defensive play to down the visitors 4-2.

ST. DENIS HOMERS

Roy St. Denis cracked a first-inning homer and Bob Swanson hurled a four-hit shutout as Bates won Sunday's opener 6-0.

Auvache wasn't overpowering but rarely ran into trouble except in the sixth inning when he was tagged for three hits and both Seattle runs.

Harvey Stevenson and Bob Holness, who both reached base on errors, came across with the winning runs in the sixth inning on base hits by Muzz Smith and Don Lancaster, who also belted a two-run homer.

A Shortt Fuse Ignites Bell's

Bell's Men's Wear socked three home runs — including a grand slam by Bill Shortt — for an eight-run explosion in the second inning en route to a 17-0 romp over Victoria Moisons in a Stuffy McGinnis Major Men's Softball League game Sunday at Heywood Park.

Darrell Lorimer and Jim Wilson also cracked homers, each with one man on base. Bell's capped their onslaught with a five-run burst in the seventh inning.

Winning pitcher Steve Ross, who went the distance while scattering five hits, helped his own cause with two hits, scoring three runs and two runs batted in.

In the opener of Sunday's regular doubleheader, a two-run blast by Cec Ferguson with two out in the sixth inning gave Labatts a 4-3 decision over the Sooke Merchants.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Jerry Heard is a casual, relaxed, quietly-confident young man, who has immediate goals now, especially after his victory Sunday in the $125,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

"I want to knock off Jack Nicklaus," he said, lacking even a trace of bravado.

"I'll play next week in the Open starting Thursday, but I'm not sure what I'll do after that. I want to be right for the U.S. Open. I want to get Nicklaus."

Nicklaus announced earlier this year his hope of winning the big four titles this year, the United States and British Opens, the Masters and PGA. He has won the Masters. The U.S. Open is scheduled June 15-18 at Pebble Beach, Calif.

Nicklaus skipped this event but will play in Memphis.

Heard's $25,000 first prize increased his tour winnings this season to $106,000, second to Nicklaus' $154,000.

The win was his third career victory and second this season. He blew a two-stroke lead with a two-over-par on the 17th hole which dropped him into a tie with Fred Marti. But he won on the 18th by two strokes when he sank a 25-foot birdie putt after Marti went one over par from a buried lie in a bunker.

Heard, 25, finished with a three-over-par 73 and 275 total, five-under-par on the 7,142-yard Colonial Country Club course.

Sprint Champ Saves Tourists

Two touring rugby clubs from the British Isles, scheduled to play in Victoria later this week, opened Western Canada visits with victories on Saturday.

Bridgend of Wales launched a five-match tour of B.C. with a 20-16 triumph over the University of British Columbia in Vancouver while Limerick Bohemians of Eire began their safari with a 19-9 win over Calgary Reps in Calgary.

One of the top Welsh clubs, Bridgend led 12-6 at half-time but the T-Birds fought back to gain a 16-16 tie.

Then, Welsh sprint champion John Williams burst through on a 40-yard dash for his third try of the match to snatch the win. Norman Lang scored the other try for Wales and standoff-half Ian Lewis kicked two conversions.

Bridgend plays Northwest Reps in Vancouver Wednesday before opening the Vancouver Island portion of the tour with a match against Castaways at 7 p.m. Saturday in Centennial Stadium.

Players from the Welshside will take part in a seven-a-side tournament May 22 at Macdonald Park. Bridgend finishes with a match against James Bay Athletic Association on May 24.

Bohemians play a Vancouver side on Tuesday before tackling Oak Bay Wanderers at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in Centennial Stadium.

Belkin Wasn't Enough

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vicente Zarazua, playing captain for the Mexican Davis Cup team, said before play began he was confident of his team's ability to defeat Canada in the best-of-five challenge round.

His confidence was borne out as the two teams completed three days of competition Sunday with Mexico taking a 3-2 victory and the right to meet defending Davis Cup champion United States team.

For the Canadian side, the round was a dreary repetition of last year's Mexico City round, in which Mexico also won 3-2. Mike Belkin took two singles matches, as he did in Mexico City, but Canada couldn't manage another point.

Tony Bardsley, 27, took part in the other two singles but didn't win a set in bowing to Raul Ramirez and Loyo Mayo. The latter clinched Mexico's victory with a 8-6, 6-4, 6-3 victory Sunday.

Belkin's 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 victory over the 18-year-old Ramirez was meaningless.

Belkin defeated Loyo Mayo 6-2, 6-0, 3-6, 6-8, 7-5 Friday to give Canada a short-lived 1-0 lead, but Ramirez equalled the score by taking Bardsley 6-4, 8-6, 6-2 in the second match of the opening day.

The Mexicans took a big step to their victory by defeating Canada in Saturday's doubles meeting. Loyo and Zarazua teamed up to defeat Belkin and 22-year-old Dale Power of Toronto, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

. . . nice to be back

MAYS HOMERS IN DRAMATIC DEBUT

By The Associated Press

"I'm just glad I'm back playing in New York," said Willie Mays Sunday after he had made a dramatic debut with the Mets, hammering a tie-breaking home run in a 5-4 victory over his former San Francisco teammates.

"There's no place to play like New York," said the 41-year-old Mays, who started his major league career in 1951 with the Giants, when the club was in New York.

Mays, acquired Thursday from the Giants for minor league pitcher Charlie Williams and an undisclosed amount of cash, said he had mixed feelings about the homer he hit off Don Carrithers in the fifth inning.

"I had feelings for both sides when I hit it," he said. "I wanted to help the Mets, but I had a feeling for the Giants.

"As I rounded third, I looked into the dugout and saw Giant uniforms. That's the only uniform I've worn until now. I didn't know what they were thinking."

Tony Perez of Cincinnati celebrated his 30th birthday, driving in all the Reds' runs with two homers, a double and a single in 4-3 and 2-0 victories over St. Louis Cardinals.

EXPOS STOP PADRES

Elsewhere, Atlanta Braves edged Chicago Cubs 2-1, Houston Astros outlasted Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6, Montreal Expos ripped San Diego Padres 9-3, and Los Angeles Dodgers at Philadelphia Phil-

In the American League, it was Minnesota Twins over Milwaukee Brewers 4-2, Oakland Athletics downing Boston Red Sox 6-5, Cleveland Indians edging Texas Rangers 4-3, Chicago White Sox tripping Baltimore Orioles 4-1, California Angels defeating New York Yankees 6-2 and Detroit Tigers over Kansas City Royals 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader. Kansas City won the second 8-4.

Mays' home run was the 647th of his career, but only his first of the season. He is the all-time leader among right-handed hitters, two ahead of Atlanta's Hank Aaron. Babe Ruth's 714 homers top the list.

Mays recalled that his first hit as a Giant also was a homer, a drive of Boston Braves' Warren Spahn.

The victory Sunday gave the Mets a 17-7 record, best in the National League, and put them three games ahead of runner-up Philadelphia in the East Division.

Mays' homer, which tied him with former Giant Mel Ott for seventh place on the all-time RBI with 1,860, overshadowed Rusty Staub's first grand-slam homer with the Mets.

"It was Mays' day," conceded Staub, former Montreal Expos' star.

Staub's homer followed three walks by Sam McDowell in the first inning. The Giants tied the score in the fifth on Bernie Williams' run-scoring pinch triple, Chris Speier's RBI double and Tito Fuentes' two-run homer. Then, in the bottom of the inning, Mays lined his homer into the left field bullpen.

Perez gave Cincinnati a 2-0 lead in the third inning of the first game with a double that scored Jim McGlothlin and Joe Morgan. After St. Louis had gone ahead in the top of the eighth on Joe Hague's solo homer and Lou Brock's two-run shot, Perez drilled his fifth homer of the season into left centre field.

In the nightcap, Perez singled in a run in the first inning and homered over the right centre field wall in the sixth in support of the three-hit, 12-strike-out pitching of Tom Hall, making his first National League start.

Bob Bailey drove in three runs with a single and a double. Mike Jorgensen cracked a two-run homer, Ron Fairly had a solo shot and Tim Foli rapped a two-run double—his first hit in 29 at-bats—leading Montreal's attack against San Diego.

Castaways Aid Leaders

Thanks to Castaways, defending-champion Cowichan has retained sole possession of first place after weekend action in the Victoria and District Cricket Association.

Castaways held Albion, the only club with a chance to tie Cowichan for the lead, to a draw at Beacon Hill Park on Sunday. Incogs soundly defeated Oak Bay by 25 runs in the other Sunday encounter at St. Michael's University School.

Castaways took first crack and lost six wickets for 20 runs before rallying to chalk up 83 runs. Newcomer Bill Sneddon led Castaway batsmen by scoring 38 runs, not out. Albion bolwer Alec Porter took four wickets for 13 runs while Chris Rowe toppled three for 24.

Albions then held out until stumps were drawn at 57 for nine wickets. Dick Beal topped Albion batsmen with 28 runs while Castaways' Nick Walton took five for 34 and David Auld toppled three for 11.

Roger Allen (14) and Pat Ely (10) led Incogs to 53 runs while Oak Bay bowler Cartwright Richards took five for 17. Oak Bay could only manage 28 runs, all out, against the bowling of Peter Davis (seven for 20) and Mike Elcock (two for five).

Howard Martin took four wickets for 17 as Cowichan dismissed Alcos for 59. Joe Armstrong led Alcos with 15 runs.

Tim Lord was 24, not out, and Tim Brierley scored 22 as Cowichan reached 60 for the loss of four wickets.

O'Dell Sets Pace; Price Skein Ends

Rick O'Dell and engine trouble helped spell an end for Bill Price's unbeaten streak this season during the super-stock main event Saturday at Western Speedway.

O'Dell grabbed the lead on the 33rd lap of the 35-lap feature race and went on to take the checkered flag while Price, winner of all three previous events this year, retired to the pits with mechanical difficulties on the 27th lap.

The super-stock main provided action for the 3,287 spectators right from the start.

Niel Montgomery, driving Larry Walker's car, caused the second stoppage when his vehicle blew its engine in a burst of flames with 10 laps remaining.

Jim Caudwell led the super-stock main from the 10th lap to the 33rd before O'Dell caught him.

The stock car main, originally scheduled for 25 laps, had to be stopped on the 23rd because of a number of accidents.

Art Reedy, who started in sixth position, grabbed the lead on the first lap and never relinquished it en route to his victory.

Montgomery emerged with the lone double win of the night before running into trouble in the man event — collecting wins in the trophy dash and fast heat.

Timing of Lomas' Goals More Vital Than Total

Goals have been few and far between for Dan Lomas this season, but the young Victoria soccer player could care less about his scoring frequency today.

It's not because the 19-year-old centre forward doesn't like scoring goals. It's just that in the last two weeks, he's scored the biggest goals of the Pacific Coast Soccer League season.

Lomas scored the only goal Saturday as Victoria West-United defeated Paul's Canadians 1-0 to capture the two-game, total-goal final 2-0 before about 600 fans at Centennial Stadium.

After scoring just once all season, Lomas also fired the only goal in the previous week's 1-0 victory over Paul's in Vancouver.

"He (Lomas) works extremely hard but the funny thing is he hadn't scored since the second game of the season," Grealy pointed out. "We moved him around and he likes to be in around the goal," explained Grealy for his knack of being in the right place at the right time in the championship series.

Otherwise, United played a tight-checking game against Paul's and were worthy winners of the Top Starr Trophy and a $325 prize award. The victory gave United a sweep of league honors after Grealy's charges finished first, one point ahead of Paul's.

"Basically it was good club spirit, a very strong defence, the linkmen and, of course, Barry Sadler which enabled us to shut out Paul's in the playoffs," was the way Grealy explained the reason for his club's success.

Sadler was in goal for all three playoff victories — all by 1-0 scores. His Saturday shutout was his eighth of the season.

While Sadler's difficult saves were limited, Paul's rookie goalie Darryl Wallace was kept much busier, especially in the first half.

Wallace made some alert stops on Ron Thompson and Dean Stokes in the first half, but had little chance on Lomas' rising shot after 20 minutes of play.

"We played our best game of the season. It went just as we had hoped," said Grealy.

Grealy singled out Ranjit Dillon as his finest defender on the day and praised subs Stu Taylor and Ralph Anderson, who filled in well for Brian Robinson and Lomas. Robinson had the flu and played just 30 minutes. The hard-working Lomas tired late in the game and sat out the final 20 minutes.

PAUL'S CANADIANS — Darryl Wallace, Mike Jackson, Barry Keating, Ron McDonald, Oscar Faoro, Bill Rawson, Dave Orange, Tom Newman, Harold Hansen, Bill Young, Sergio Zanatta. Reserves: Metro Gerala, Kinnes Christie.

Referee — Ed Ripley, Victoria.

ROYALS NIP VIC WEST IN CUP FINAL

Allan Lamb's goal late in the first half was all Cosmopolitan Royals needed Sunday to capture the Jackson Cup at Victoria High School.

Royals also received shutout goaltending from Danny Wilmshurst as they defeated defending-champion Victoria West 1-0 in the final of the annual knockout soccer competition for Victoria and District squads.

Wests were jolted in the first half by an injury to Bob Williams, who was taken to hospital with a suspected leg fracture.

Leeds Loses Final

LONDON (CP) — St. Helens beat Leeds, 16-13, in the English Rugby League Cup final here Saturday.

Spartans Blanked; Regals Lose Opener

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Columbus joined Eintracht and Croatia on the list of winners Sunday as all six clubs in the new, semi-professional B.C. Premier Soccer League played opening matches during the weekend.

Eintracht launched its campaign Saturday by taking advantage of an uncertain Victoria defence and nipping the Regals 3-2 at Empire Stadium.

Victoria playing-coach Brian Hughes, missing several key players he hopes will join the club, used schoolboy Jack Kuyvenhoven in goal and received a pleasant surprise.

The youngster had a sound first match and made several good saves on difficult shots.

Regals had to take the field without highly-regarded Jamaican international Anthony Douglas, who failed to make a plane connection in time to arrive for the match.

George Hyne and Ike MacKay were strong in midfield for Regals and veteran Peter Wilson proved outstanding among Victoria forwards.

Wilson opened scoring but Eintracht had evened the count by half time. Ash Valdal supplied the final Victoria goal with 13 minutes remaining.

Runners Ramble

Victoria Home Lumber Roadrunners bounced Nanaimo Mt. Benson Legion 16-2 Sunday in a Greater Victoria Midget "A" Lacrosse League game at the new Carnarvon Park box.

Lorry Gloeckner led Victoria with five goals and three assists. Ron Durdle collected three goals and three assists.

England, Italy Soccer Losers

Times News Services

Belgium scored an historic, but bitter-sweet 2-1 victory over defending-champion Italy in Brussels Saturday to reach the European soccer championship semi-finals for the first time.

Also advancing to the semi-finals Saturday were West Germany and the Soviet Union.

Belgium's triumph was marred by a first-half mishap, in which midfield general Wilfried van Moer, who scored the initial goal, broke a leg in a collision with Italian fullback Bertini.

With the win, only its second in international matches with Italy, Belgium earned the right to stage next month's semi-final tournament, in which it will meet West Germany.

SERIES DEADLOCKED

Romania and Hungary collided at Bucharest Sunday and failed to decide which club would oppose Russia in the semi-finals. After playing to a 1-1 deadlock in the first leg at Budapest, Hungary and Romania struggled to a 2-2 tie Sunday and will meet for a third game on neutral ground.

West Germany eliminated England by playing to a 0-0 tie before 80,000 spectators in Berlin to take the two-game, total-goals series, 3-1.

West Germany won the opener in London's Wembley Stadium two weeks ago.

Playing in steady rain on a slick field, the German squad gave England a lesson in ball control. Only once did Germany move its clever passing game to the English goalmouth, but Breitner shot wide. Germany also missed a scoring chance late in the second half when Gunter Netzer missed a free kick.

HEAVY TACKLING

England tried to compensate for its deficiencies with tight marking and heavy tackling and for a large part, controlled midfield general Netzer, who played a standout game at Wembley.

West German manager Helmut Schoen later criticized England for its "brutal tackling" which he said "was aimed at the bone. I am happy and a little proud we eliminated England from the cup."

England defeated West Germany in the 1966 World Cup final and the rivalry between the teams was very evident.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union scored three second-half goals to defeat Yugoslavia, 3-0, and take the series by the same margin. The two teams had fought to a scoreless draw in Belgrade April 30.

Blues Beat Labs

NANAIMO — New Westminster Blues recorded a 14-11 victory over Nanaimo Labatts in the opener of the Inter-City Senior "B" Lacrosse League season before about 500 fans here Saturday.

Labs held a 4-3 lead after the first period but Blues outscored the Nanaimo club 7-2 in the second frame.

WEDNESDAY, 5:00 P.M.
The phone rang. It was Sam. Of Sam's Seafood.
"My neon sign," he moaned.
"Broken, Sam?"
"Shattered! By a giant Electric Eel!"
"I'll be there in a flash."
A Giant Eel! Could be a slippery customer.

WEDNESDAY, 5:15 P.M.
Found eel. Plugged in to Sam's flashing sign. Drunk with power. Singing "Ohm, sweet ohm." We threw the switch.

FRIDAY, 5:00 P.M.
The eel died. Of shock. Paid Sam's claim. Because Wawanesa All-Risk Commercial Insurance can even cover neon signs. Client happy. Case closed.

That's what separates our economy car from other economy cars. Corolla is more than a pretty price.

Much more. And it's all standard.

Take a minute and have a look here. Then go around to a showroom and have a look there.

Brentwood Tops Regatta

SHAWNIGAN — Brentwood College will be represented by two squads at the Canadian schoolboy championships in St. Catherines, Ont., early next month after recording victories in the 11th annual Shawnigan Lake rowing regatta on Saturday.

Brentwood oarsmen winning the varsity eights and varsity coxed fours will advance to the national final. Brentwood also won the varsity coxless fours.

Shawnigan Lake Boys' School recorded eight victories, including a triumph by Murray Hein in the varsity singles event.

Hein, from Rocky Mountain House, Alta., has been invited to the nationals.

Brentwood won the varsity eights in an exciting finish, covering the 1,500-metre course in five minutes, 12.4 seconds to beat out two Seattle schools — runner-up Green Lake and Lakeside.

Shawnigan's main crew victory came in the junior varsity eights, where Brentwood finished second.

St. George's of Vancouver was the other entrant in the 19-race meet.

For the first time in the regatta's history, no points were officially awarded for placings in events and thus no team champion was declared.

Express Rolling

Esquimalt Ocean Express bounced Brentwood 11-7 Sunday at Bullen Park to extend an unbeaten streak in the Colwood and District Juvenile Boys' Softball League to four games.

Hallman Springs Surprise

Times News Services

Hallman wore down the pace-setting Winning Charge with a determined stretch drive and hit the wire with an unexpected victory Saturday in the Province Handicap at Vancouver's Exhibition Park.

Overlooked by most bettors as he tackled some tough sprinters in the 6½-furlong feature, Hallman got an expert ride from Dennis Terry to beat Winning Charge by three-quarters of a length with a time of 1:17 2-5.

Shadows Dividend, the 1971 three-year-old champion at Exhibition Park who is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Druce of Victoria, was a fast-closing third.

Hallman paid $45.40, $12.60 and $5.30 across the board while Winning Charge returned $5.30 and $4.30.

At Fort Erie, Ont., Sunday, Gentleman Conn bolstered his status as favorite for this year's Queen's Plate by winning his first Canadian start of the year.

Named the best two-year-old in Canada last year, Gentleman Conn came from fifth place under the handling of Sandy Hawley to win the 6½-furlong feature by a head over Spirit Rock, running the distance in 1:17 2-5.

Major Presto set a track record for seven furlongs Saturday at Calgary's Victoria Park, clipping two-fifths of a second from the former mark as he finished in 1:24 2-5, almost three lengths ahead of Bib Dan.

PREAKNESS PREP

Key to the Mint, which was kept out of the Kentucky Derby after winning the Derby Trial, scored an impressive victory Saturday in the Preakness Prep at Pimlico track in Baltimore.

Robert Woodhouse guided the colt to a 2½-length victory over previously-unbeaten Ladiga, but trainer Elliott Burch said he was committed to use jockey Braulio Baeza in next Saturday's $150,000-added Preakness.

Key to the Mint finished the 1 1-16 miles in the good time of 1.42 1-5, despite altering course near the three-eights pole.

Smiling Jack was third and Upper Case, expected to run in the Preakness as an entry with Derby winner Riva Ridge, wound up a disappointing last in the five-horse field.

UPSET TRIUMPH

In the $59,000 Dixie Handicap, also held at Pimlico Saturday, Onandaga paid $68.20 to win while recording one of the biggest upsets in the 71-year-old history of the Dixie. Favored Run The Gantlet finished fourth.

Guided through a narrow opening on the final turn by Jack Kurtz, Onandaga moved from sixth to first within a sixteenth of a mile and won by three lengths over Star Envoy.

Onandaga, soundly beaten in five previous outings this year, was timed in 2:30 for the 1⅛ miles on a yielding turf course.

At Inglewood, Calif., Finalista won the $55,150 Caballero Stakes for three-year-olds at Hollywood Park in easy fashion, going the mile in 1:33 4-5.

Ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., Finalista clipped a full second off the stakes record as he beat Wild World by six lengths. Chevron Flight finished third in the field of nine.

Henry, Elizabeth, Archie Bunker Take Emmys

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Glenda Jackson and Keith Michell, a regal pair from Britain, and All in the Family, based on an English comedy, reigned over the 24th annual Emmy presentations Sunday.

Miss Jackson won two Emmys for her portrayl of Queen Elizabeth I—as best actress in a series and for a single performance. The show, Elizabeth R, was named outstanding dramatic series and outstanding new series. It was shown by the Public Broadcasting System.

Michell, who portrayed King Henry VIII from the beginning of his reign until his death, was named outstanding actor in a single performance for the Catherine Howard Segment of The Six Wives of Henry VIII on CBS.

Peter Falk was named best actor in a dramatic series for his slouching, plodding, cigar-chomping portrayal of Columbo in the NBC Mystery Movie.

CBS's All in the Family—adapted from a similar British show—was the biggest over-all winner with six awards at the ceremonies at the Hollywood Palladium.

It was named outstanding comedy series and Emmys went to three members of the Archie Bunker family—Caroll O'Connor, Jean Stapleton and Sally Struthers, who tied with Valerie Harper of CBS's The Mary Tyler Moore Show for best supporting actress in a comedy.

Brian's Song a touching ABC Movie of the Week about two pro football players—Gale Sayers and the late Brian Piccolo —was named the outstanding single program.

Jack Warden, who played the football coach, won as best supporting actor in a drama and his award was accepted by Sayers.

The Carol Burnett Show on CBS was named the oustanding musical variety series on its fifth nomination for the award. Miss Burnett, hurrying off to catch a plane to begin shooting a movie, said: "I guess the cliche is always a bridesmaid and now I'm a bride."

Jack Lemmon in 'S Wonderful, 'S Marvellous, 'S Gershwin, seen on NBC, was named the outstanding single musical or variety program.

The Dick Cavett Show, which is on notice from ABC that it must improve its ratings by this summer or face cancellation, was named the outstanding talk variety series.

BBC-produced programs, Elizabeth R, The Six Wives of Henry VIII, The Snow Goose and The Search for the Nile won seven major Emmys.

Harvey Korman of the Carol Burnett Show was singled out for outstanding achievement by a performer in music or variety.

BUTCHART GARDENS. OPEN EVERY DAY 9 A.M. TO 6:30 P.M. It's Not Just The Rare And Colorful Flowers That Have Made These Gardens So Famous, So Enjoyable. It could be the artful way they are arranged, the fact that these 30 acres are made up of six completely different gardens—the fabulous Sunken Garden, Lake Garden featuring the "Ross Fountains," English Rose Garden, stately Italian Garden, Japanese Garden and the great Stage Show Garden, each with its own individual charm. Then there's the magnificent Show Greenhouse, the Begonia Bower, the fascinating Seed & Gift Shop and a hundred and one beautiful hanging baskets, walkways, nooks and corners. Careful planning and replanting keep these gardens at their best day after day, season after season.

THE BUTCHART GARDENS were developed from an old, cavernous cement quarry. As a result the contours, layouts and terrain are very unusual. Their location is perfect too. Surrounded by forest-clad hills, they're situated on the shores of beautiful Todd Inlet, off Brentwood Bay. The air is always fresh and pleasant.

TO ADD TO YOUR PLEASURE the FLOWER RESTAURANT serves delicious lunches and afternoon teas every day, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., and the Coffee and Snack Bar is always open. In all, your visit to these world-famous gardens will be an exciting and rewarding experience. SEE THEM NOW AS THE BUTCHART GARDENS PRESENTS "SPRINGTIME '72".

Next game: Tuesday — VICTORIA at Vancouver

If Victoria Shamrocks intend to snap a four-way deadlock for first place in their favor Tuesday night, they'll have to figure a way to shatter a jinx that has survived for eight Western Lacrosse Association games.

Vancouver Burrards were victims of the jinx Saturday as they became the eighth team in eight games to depart from an enemy arena without a point.

Holding a three-goal lead with 10 minutes remaining, Burrards were tripped 12-11 by Coquitlam Adanacs, who staged an eight-goal surge in the final period before 1,150 fans at Coquitlam Sports Centre.

Burrards will be hoping the trend continues for at least one more game. They'll be at home Tuesday night when they meet the Shamrocks at Vancouver Forum.

Wayne Bellwood fired a pair of goals and assisted on two others for the Adanacs, who trailed 9-6 at one time in the third period after being down 2-0 and 5-4 after the first two periods.

Vancouver's Dennis Quigley was assessed a five-minute major penalty for fighting and while he was off Adanacs pumped a pair of power-play tallies past Burrards' rookie goalie Dave Evans.

WINNER of Japan Airlines international golf tournament in Narashino Sunday was South African star Gary Player (above), who finished with two-under-par 70 for 72-hole total of 280. Australian Peter Thomson fired 71 in final round to wind up in three-way tie for second, one stroke behind Player.

Hockey Tourists Here Tuesday

Jill Boyd, Jill Hawkins, Jenny John, Caroline Penn and Diane Whittingham, who have also been selected to the B.C. side, will join forces with Liz Dixon, Liz Hawes (both B.C. reserves), Sarah Angus, Sue Molliliet, Nancy Hill and Vivien Davies to represent Vancouver Island against a touring Australian team in an exhibition women's field hockey match Tuesday at Macdonald Park.

Sheila Dunn and Kelly Shephard were chosen as Island reserves for the 7:15 p.m. encounter against the select New South Wales side.

Jill Quincy is the Island manager.

Victoria's Shelley Winters and seven players from Vancouver make up the balance of the B.C. squad, scheduled to face the Aussie visitors at 6:45 p.m. Thursday at the University of Victoria.

Among the distinguished members of the touring team are a number of players that have represented Australia in international competition.

Captain Joy Payne was on the All-Australia side in 1958 and from 1960-68, Janet Beverley was on the Aussie touring team to England and South Africa in 1970 and Elaine Carr made the All-Australia team in 1962, 1963-65 as well as the touring team in 1970.

A New Peace Proposal: Call Off That Hockey

Dear Diary: As I make this entry the Yankee planes are aswarm over North Vietnam. The great powers are looking down each other's throats. Once more, the chances for a peaceful world seem perilous.

As if all that weren't feverish enough it now seems a certainty that Canada will be playing Russia in a hockey tournament this autumn. Me, I'm heading for that secret cave in the Sooke hills until it all blows up or blows over.

Just why anyone in his right mind should see anything to be gained by pitting our muscle-men on skates against their muscle-men on skates is something that totally eludes me. Hockey, at this professional level, has become the most savage of games. It is far and away the most idiotic, pointless expression of credulous nationalism that has been invented short of war. Win or lose, the recriminations are inevitable.

You need merely to have watched the final games of the Stanley Cup play-offs to see how passions are aroused, in the holy name of box office receipts, by a contest that seems a microcosm of human violence and brutality, an extension of all the dumb things that divide nations and ideologies.

If athletes are to be good-will ambassadors, if sports are to be a means of bringing nations closer together, let's stick to ping pong players.

Dear Diary: To the racing at Vancouver's Exhibition Park this sunny afternoon, my first visit there since the day that old Dave and I tested The Infallible System.

Dave was a pensioner who lived in a cluttered, one-room shack up the road from our place on Salt Spring Island, Dublin-born (he was once runner-up in the all-Ireland welterweight boxing championship) and with an Irish brogue that was riper than Barry Fitzgerald's. He was the happiest, most self-reliant old man I've ever known, immersed in a dozen hobbies from bread-making to the growing of African Violets.

Over the years that we were friends Dave was constantly at work on a mathematical system to beat the ponies. He was 83 years of age when he arrived at the formula he called The Infallible System and had tested it against form charts sent to him from a dozen tracks across Canada and the United States.

Dave had determined that there's a constant, recurring pattern in the number of favorites who win, place or show in races involving high-calibre thoroughbreds in allowance or stakes events.

Phase Two was to evolve a parley system of betting, each progressive bet compensating for a previous race that hasn't gone to form. This form of inverted pyramid betting requires not only nerves of steel, but, more importantly, a sizable capital outlay to cover barren stretches when the public choices fail to come in. Old Dave had the nerves. The capital, on a monthly pension cheque, was something else.

That day we went to Exhibition Park was simply to demonstrate how, in eight races, the system worked. Dave wore his lucky tie with the hand-painted shamrocks on it, since cold mathematics, he explained required the company of Lady Luck.

My skepticism had gone completely when we boarded the ferry home that night, chuckling and simpering over our profits. We discussed endlessly our plan to bring a millionaire in as a third partner, to travel to Hialeah, Santa Anita, Aqueduct, Belmont, Churchill Downs, wherever the beasts were running and the sun was shining.

A month later old Dave was dead, gone peacefully in his sleep. The Infallible System had calculated all of the odds except that one sure thing.

Dear Diary: All manner of chiding and advising letters though the week as the result of my confession that I've never managed to get through Leo Tolstoy's War and Peace.

One kindly gentleman even provides a chart showing the entire cast of characters and their relationship to each other, a sort of you-can't-tell-the-players-without-a-program that he has devised after a dozen readings of the novel.

I particularly prize the advice of Sophia Preisman, of the University of Victoria library, a woman whose many degrees were earned in Vienna, Florence and Montreal and clearly a devoted Tolstoy reader. Some of her suggestions:

"Do not read War and Peace sitting by an azure swimming pool. Do read it sitting in your most comfortable chair without any inside or outside distractions. Disregard the long names plus patronymics or you will mix up all the characters. Do differentiate between names just by remembering their initials, 'K', 'B', etc.

"Do read about Tolstoy, himself, a great writer and a great man. Do read about this tragic period in Russia's history and you will understand more of the present. Do not miss this feast of narrative, action and sheer zest of life. There is nothing in world literature to compare it with. People are alive, they love, they hate, they repent, they die. You will want to read it over and over."

Well, there goes my summer.

Giant Tanker in Dock

Probably the largest oil tanker ever to be seen on this coast will enter Esquimalt Graving Dock tonight for propeller inspection.

She is the San Juan Voyager, of 131,000 tons deadweight, that arrived at the Atlantic Richfield company's Cherry Point refinery north of Bellingham midnight Sunday.

She was carrying 235,000 rest of her cargo of mid-east quarter of her capacity. The barrels of oil, about a oil had been unloaded in Long Beach, Calif.

Developer Appeals to Minister

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

The power of the B.C. municipal affairs minister to overrule regional board planning decisions may be demonstrated soon over a subdivision attempt on Gabriola Island.

Wildwood Estates, a development company that wants to turn 244 acres of an old farm into 250 single lots on Gabriola, one of the Gulf Islands near Nanaimo, has appealed the decision last month by the Nanaimo Regional Board to turn down the development.

Wildwood Estates applied for a development permit and after a public hearing on the island April 19, the board refused to write a land use contract which would spring the development.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will have to make a decision on whether to use the power he was given by a controversial amendment to the Municipal Act in 1971.

Wildwood Estates has appealed the regional board ruling and turned the question over to Campbell.

Campbell was not available for comment today but referred to one of his officials, who said this was the first time to his knowledge that the amendment was being put to the test.

Announcement of the appeal is to be printed in local journals today an action which will formally begin the appeal process.

The minister can simply overrule the board's decision and force a land use contract to be written between the regional board and the developer. But in any case, a new public hearing into the case will be held, according to the official.

The notice of appeal has already got Gabriola citizens in a state of worry that they will see their organized opposition to the subdivision come to nothing.

A spokesman, June Harrison, said she understood that people in the Gulf Islands would be allowed to participate in the planning of the islands, because of statements to that effect by Campbell.

"We took him at his word, fools that we are," she said.

She also said Campbell told her last week that a public hearing will be held.

At the April 19 public hearing a large number of people turned out to oppose the subdivision attempt, leading to the regional board's decision to turn down the subdivision and produce an overall plan for the island, with citizen participation.

The amendment giving the municipal affairs minister the power to over-rule regional planning decision brought howls from municipal officials across the province in 1971.

The municipal affairs department official said there is definitely no decision by Campbell so far.

The announcement merely states the fact that the appeal has been registered with the department under the amendment.

Mrs. Harrison said the problems of allowing large subdivision development on Gabriola include availability of water and ferry service.

She said already there is often a seven-hour wait for people who live on the island, which is about 25 minutes from Nanaimo. The government has promised a new ferry which will increase the car-carrying capacity from about 21 to about 30 cars.

Water is scarce on Gabriola, and water table formations are such that wells dug on certain parts of the island will dry up wells already established.

Mrs. Harrison said the residents of Gabriola had been promised that any new subdivision or other development would follow a properly prepared plan, rather than the plan following subdivisions.

'Unified greens' will replace navy blues for cadets

Cadets Balk at New Uniform

Navy League of Canada officials are protesting a department of national defence edit that sea cadets soon will be compelled to wear berets and green uniforms.

The loss of the navy uniforms and seaman caps is part of an over-all program that will put all cadet units — sea, land and air — into greens.

But the department insists sea cadets wear berets, in spite of country-wide opposition by the Navy League.

In Ottawa, Jack Hodge, the league's general manager, says the retention of the seaman's cap by sea cadets is still "a live issue". He said if the department persists in putting the sea cadets into a beret they will be going back on their undertaking.

Les Hammer of Port Alberni, president of the league's Vancouver Island division, accuses the department of "arrogance" in issuing the green uniform and green beret order.

There are nine sea cadet corps (more than 1,000 sea cadets on the island) and Hammer says a poll taken of cadets showed them overwhelmingly in favor of retaining the navy-style uniform.

The newly-formed Army League has expressed approval of the new uniforms for army cadets and the Air Cadet League has found most of their cadets willing to accept the new uniform, although some regret losing the air force blue.

Hammer says army cadets will lose little because the new uniforms are still in their style. In contrast, he says sea cadets will lose identity and the esprit de corps which keeps them one of the most healthy of the three cadet organizations.

Defence Minister Edgar Benson and his cadet advisers say the new uniforms will bring enthusiasm and end a slump in cadet enrolment. They quoted over-all figures — in 1970, 86,000 cadets; 1971, 75,000 and in January 1972, 72,000.

Hammer contends that the new uniforms will result in a continuation of the downward spiral.

"These figures are for all cadets," he explains. "When it comes to sea cadets, we increased enrolment last year and it looks as if we'll be doing the same this year."

Hammer said the department is not living up to its agreement with the league.

"The Navy League started in 1896 in Canada and were training boys long before there was a navy. The navy only came into the cadet picture in the Second World War when they were looking for recruits among sea cadet corps."

Hammer said that when the cadet act was passed in the 1940s it was agreed that the league would be in equal partnership with the department of cadet maters.

"There is no longer a 50-50 "the word navy has now become a bad word in the department's official jargon."

Hammer says the new uniforms, 600 of which will be issued on a trial basis this fall, are a "terrific and unnecessary expense for the taxpayers of Canada."

"We have Navy League cadets in sailor uniforms. Once they see sea cadets in green they'll want to be like their bigger brothers. The whole thing is wrong."

WADE SUING

Writs claiming damages for libel have been issued against Mayor Peter Pollen, the publishers of the two Victoria newspapers, and Victoria Times reporter Paul Moss, by architect John Wade, second vice-chairman of the city's Advisory Planning Commission.

The writs arise from a statement issued last week by the mayor which criticized Mr. Wade's attitude to town planning and requested him to resign from the Commission. The mayor's statement, which came in the form of a press release from City Hall, was reported in the Victoria Times on May 9 and the Daily Colonist on May 10, as well as by local radio stations.

The Times published the report in good faith, feeling it had a responsibility to convey to its readers the mayor's publicly-stated views on a matter of great local interest. It had no intention of impugning Mr. Wade's reputation and integrity and apologizes unreservedly for any embarrassment suffered by Mr. Wade as a result of publication of the press release from the mayor's office.

No Surrender For Tisdalle

The war is not yet over for John Tisdalle.

The Social Credit MLA for Saanich and the Islands, defeated by lawyer Foster Isherwood for his party's nomination last Friday, still has a chance for the nomination.

He said today the party's constitution stipulates that a nomination from a riding association can only stand for six months, after which time a new nominating convention must be held.

Asked if there is a chance of no election being called between now and six months, Tisdalle said: "I think there's a good 50-50 chance of that."

He cited the economic situation in the province, including labor unrest between unions and management in the construction and forest industries, as reasons for no election being called in the near future.

"I don't know if this discord and unrest can be sorted out into a good election issue. I kind of doubt it," he said.

Tisdalle also said he would not lodge a formal protest with the party executive about the Friday nominating meeting, despite being asked to do so by several party members.

"This is a problem for the organization itself, not my problem," he said. "They have got to straighten it out themselves."

Of his opponent Isherwood, Tisdalle said: "If they want to choose a loser instead of a winner, which is what they've done, that's not my problem, it's theirs."

"If they say John Tisdalle is shrieking or irate because he lost, they're wrong. The only time you'll find me shrieking or irate is when the press gets it wrong."

Tisdalle was referring to a wire service report which quoted him as saying he would protest the nominating convention. A second wire service story today had him denying this.

Tisdalle also said the outcome of the meeting might have been different if some delegates from Pender Island had not missed the ferry which was to bring them to the Saanich meeting.

If the meeting had been held on one of the Gulf Islands, instead of in Saanich, there would have been "very few people from Saanich attending," he said.

Tisdalle said his oath of office as an MLA requires him to fulfill his term, including any future session of the present legislature Premier Bennett may call.

CRASH KILLS THREE

Gordon Chester New, 58, of 1701 Cedar Hill Cross Road, was dead on arrival at Chemainus General Hospital after the collision two miles north of Chemainus on Trans-Canada Highway.

Police said he was travelling alone when his car met one occupied by Andrew Samarin, 68, of 696 Second Street, Nanaimo, and his wife Rosa.

Mrs. Samarin and New are believed to have died instantly and Samarin died at Ladysmith General Hospital.

Nanaimo coroner C. F. Newcombe has ordered an inquest.

Chemainus RCMP said there were a number of witnesses to the accident who had not yet been interviewed in detail.

It appeared the cars came together near the middle of the highway, which at that point is straight and on a slight rise.

New's car was being driven south and the Samarin car was headed north. The time was 2:20 p.m. and visibility was good.

Galiano Worries

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Galiano Island became a "tight little island" Saturday when residents moved to control future development of their 18-mile-long domain.

A total of 250 residents — most of the island's adult population — decided at a meeting to appoint a committee to work out a community plan to control a large number of subdivisions proposed by MacMillan Bloedel Realty, owners of three quarters of the island.

The company lands are operated as tree farms which enjoy tax concessions for growing timber. Earlier this year, it decided to go into real estate and sell some of the property for subdivision developments.

The meeting was attended by James Campbell, Outer Islands representative of the Capital regional board, and W. R. McCrimmon of MacMillan Bloedel in Vancouver.

Campbell told the meeting "either you prepare a community plan for developing this island or MacMillan Bloedel will do it for you."

He pointed out that unlike mainland cities and urban centres on Vancouver Island, Galiano has only so much land and its expansion is limited.

"You should decide what the population density of this island should be and what protection should be given to preserve its environment and resources," he said.

Campbell took issue with McCrimmon's statement that MacMillan Bloedel real estate plans had been distorted by the press.

McCrimmon was referring to a Times report which stated the company had proposed to subdivide three lots to an acre.

"What the Victoria Times published was true and were facts submitted in one of your company's letters," he said.

Campbell produced the letter and challenged McCrimmon to prove it otherwise.

McCrimmon was asked if the company had made a study to determine if there was sufficient water for their proposed subdivisions.

He said studies were made but he was unable to give any details.

"I think MacMillan Bloedel should back off from this entire plan," said resident Geoff Spender. "We don't want to become the Black Hole of Calcutta — we'd become the Green Hell of Galiano."

"You have enjoyed tax-free land for growing trees and now that the land is worth more as real estate, you plan to sell it," said another member of the audience.

All the Praise Going This Group Is Worth

In my thinking, an organization that remains active and succeeds in maintaining an interested membership over 60 years must surely merit a handful of orchids.

When that organization also keeps alive a project that embodies the full meaning of its motto "Love Never Faileth," and continues to update that project to meet today's needs, it deserves 60 gold stars.

Such an organization is the Florence Nightingale Chapter of the IODE, that next Saturday will have been in existence since May 20, 1912.

Talking to Mrs. William (Winnie) Balir and Mrs. Norman (Connie) Turner, both former regents of the chapter, I learned that the first regent, Mrs. B. M. Hasell, also a good many charter members were doctors' wives.

Therefore their interests were in hospitals. That's how the chapter got its name — Florence Nightingale — and how it decided on a project. In broad terms it was to help, where needed, with the many TB patients then in care at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

In its early years this chapter built a sunroom for the TB patients. Furnishings for that room were the personal gift of Mrs. Kyrle Symons, who was regent at the time.

During the '30s furnishings were provided for a new women's recreation room in the TB ward.

About the same time the chapter redecorated the men's sun room, laid new linoleum, re-upholstered the furniture, had the piano tuned and donated a vitrola.

Winnie Blair says, in regard to that particular project — "consternation broke out when the members learned that a spark had popped out on the new linoleum and burned an unsightly hole." (Old time minutes do not say from where that spark came.)

It was left to "a long-deceased member, Mrs. W. Turner to do something about that hole." As nothing further appears in the minutes regarding the matter, Mrs. Blair assumes it must have been "covered up to the satisfaction of all concerned."

In those long-ago days members visited the TB patients regularly each week and served them tea and special treats. The chapter paid for laundering needed by those with little money and held regular pyjama, nightgown and towel showers for patients in need.

Another highlight was the annual Christmas dinner, with all the trimmings (including bottles of beer and a gift of $3 for each patient) held in the TB Pavilion. Cecil Heaton and later Len Acres played for the occasion and chapter members served.

The pavilion is now phased out and TB patients are few in number compared to a half-century ago. So the chapter has turned to providing a share of much-needed sophisticated equipment at Jubilee Hospital, including a kidney dialysis machine, a heart monitor and a revolving bed for burned patients.

In addition it has two adopted schools at Prespatou and Saturna Island and has given help to the trainee school for the retarded at Kings Road and Blanshard Street. A group of Saturna Island pupils were materially assisted in arranging a tour across the country and a visit to Expo '67 in Canada's centennial year.

All this and a great deal more in the way of service work adds up to something to sing about, something to remember and something of which to be very proud.

No doubt the singing, reminiscing and the pride will all be there on Tuesday at a diamond jubilee luncheon arranged by the chapter in the Chief Petty Officers' Mess on Esquimalt Road.

Old artifacts live easily in modern home

PAST, PRESENT LINK HANDS WITH DESIGN

Although a person should be in step with the times, and with new developments in design and architecture, a bit of nostalgia from the past relates today with yesteryear. Even the most functional contemporary interiors become warmer when handsome antiques accessorize the house.

As a prime example, we show this unusual bathroom by architect Barry Berkus, A.I.A. The bathroom is about as contemporary as one can get. The post and beam construction, the steel plates and bolts that secure the ceiling, these are indicative of "now" design. But the eye-catcher is an old stained glass window, the leaded panel adds color to an otherwise austere scheme. And it has more depth than a picture would have because of its installation on an outside wall. When the sun shines through the glass, the room is filled with color.

Similar Panel on Inside

A similar panel could be used on an inside wall if the glass were installed several inches in front of a solid panel and with a light behind it. The same principle applies here, to achieve light through the glass at night, except that clear glass would be on the exterior wall, so that the sun could shine through the glass during the day.

At first glance this wall appears to be an interior wall. The mirror on the left reflects the bedroom behind. But you will see the basin also reflected, and above, the high window that tops this exterior wall.

Cookies to Tempt the Raiders

By MARY MOORE

These Tutti-Fruitti Hermits remind me of my girlhood. I can still remember licking the big brown granite bowl when my mother had finished spooning the batter onto the cookie sheets.

You can keep these cookies soft and moist if they are in a cookie tin with a snug-fitting cover. That's always assuming there are no cookie tin raiders around.

TUTTI-FRUITTI HERMITS

1 cup butter (or half butter, half shortening — room temperature)
2 cups light brown sugar (packed)
1 large egg
1 tsp. finely grated orange rind
1 cup pared, shredded apple (about two medium-sized apples)
1 cup raisins
½ cup desiccated coconut
¼ cup orange juice
1 tsp. vanilla
3 cups plus three tblsp. unsifted all-purpose flour
2 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
½ cup milk

In large beater bowl cream butter (or half butter and half shortening). Add brown sugar gradually. Beat until fluffy. Add the egg and beat well. Stir in grated orange rind, shredded apple, raisins, coconut, orange juice and vanilla.

Sift the flour, baking powder, soda and salt over creamed mixture alternately with milk, mixing well after each addition.

Drop by well-rounded teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheets about 1½ inches apart. Preheat oven to 400 deg. F. and bake cookies on shelf above centre position in oven and immediately turn oven temperature down to 350 deg. F. (This higher temperature at first helps to form an immediate crust on the cookies and prevents them from expanding too far.) Bake for 12 to 15 minutes or until golden brown.

Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents.

Detergent Firms Await Word on Phosphate Cuts

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

OTTAWA — Detergent industry representatives were told during a meeting with government officials here last week that Environment Minister Jack Davis will review the government's proposed policy to require a reduction in the phosphate content of detergents to five per cent by the end of the year.

And industry representatives were also told in the closed meeting that Mr. Davis will announce his decision on the phosphate reduction within "10 days," according to a senior environment department official.

Officials who attended the government-industry meeting said that the detergent manufacturers continue to be concerned about maintaining public confidence in their products.

The industry representatives suggest that a reduction of phosphates in detergents to five per cent would require the use of substitutes to maintain tthe properties of their products.

And they suggest "clouds of uncertainty" will hang over NTA — the most likely substitute for phosphates — as a result primarily of reports from the U.S.

Canadian scientists have done extensive tests on NTA and, to date, have found no health hazards or detrimental effects on the environment at levels which would result from using NTA in detergents, according to federal officials. The U.S. government maintains phosphates are still preferable to NTA in detergents.

There is a possibility that Mr. Davis may decide to postpone the phosphate reduction when he makes his decision later this month. Officials say it is not likely he will scrub the phosphate reduction altogether, based on evidence available to date.

'Crazy' Idea Becomes Base Of Language

TORONTO (CP) — Charles K. Bliss, 75, is overwhelmed that his 30-year-old "crazy idea" has caught on.

The Australian inventor of a "picture language" now finds he may have led to a breakthrough in the field of communications and medical therapy.

His language, composed of simple pictorial symbols for writing, typing and printing that can be read in all languages without translation, is being tested at the Ontario Crippled Children's Centre here.

Mr. Bliss was so excited about the tests he mortgaged his home in Australia to raise enough money to fly to Canada and watchthem being conducted.

"A man who has a crazy idea, such as a picture language, must be dead at least 50 years before he will get any recognition," he said. "I am overwhelmed that I am still alive and people are noticing my work."

He wrote books about his language and paid for their publication in Sydney, Australia. It was one of these books, hidden away in a Sudbury, Ont., library, that drew attention to his work.

A research team, composed of engineering, medical and educational workers, was trying to develop and evaluate a communications system to meet the needs of a specific group of children. It discovered the book and began testing the system.

The children, many of whom are victims of cerebral palsy, experienced difficulty communicating with therapists and each other.

Now, using Mr. Bliss's language, they are communicating.

The children are provided with a semi-circular electronic tray fastened to the chairs above their laps. Mr. Bliss's symbols are arranged around the perimeter of the tray. The children learn to move an arrow to the necessary symbol in order to communicate an idea or need.

Barbara Royds, director of communications relations at the centre, said the picture language will not take the place of speech therapy, but will open doors to communication so children, where possible, may learn to speak later.

The language makes use of simple semantics and symbolic logic.

Female Respect Urged

CALGARY (CP) — Before women are truly liberated, they'll have to start respecting other women's brain power and accomplishments, Christina Newman, associate editor of Macleans magazine, said recently.

"We need to support each other," she told the Women's Canadian Club.

Women were often the first to shy away from using a female doctor, lawyer or professor.

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

For Doris Schuh, it could be 1,000 Masons at a sitting. In this, the second in a series of five, UVic's caterer speaks about her job.

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Doris Schuh's job is an expansion of a traditional female role — feeding people.

However, she does it on a scale never dreamed of by most housewives.

As manager of food services for the University of Victoria, she feeds anyone who stays in the university residences, winter or summer. She runs the university's cafeteria and caters for a wide variety of functions, from annual dinners to tea parties and wedding receptions.

Although she's a professional dietitian, Miss Schuh's concerns are that of any manager — staff, balancing the budget, co-ordinating the many different activities in her operations centre, the Commons Building.

Right now, with the 600 winter session residents gone and the 200 summer school residents not yet arrived, catering for conferences and various community functions is at its height.

"The biggest function we've had so far was a dinner for 1,000 Masons," said Miss Schuh. They didn't all fit in one room, but they got fed.

This week her staff is feeding high school students here for a provincial drama festival, and on the weekend they prepared the dinner for the British Columbia UNICEF committee annual meeting.

They have handled the RCMP ball, the Saanich policemen's ball, the firemen's ball and the Rotary Club ball in recent weeks, and the Victoria Day ball is coming up.

The Commons Building was never planned for these catering functions, but it is well designed and the rooms can be adapted for different purposes, said Miss Schuh.

"We usually work with everyone that comes along to get a suitable menu," she said. "Sometimes we talk someone into an interesting sauce or interesting dessert."

Miss Schuh's staff during the winter is about 45, with two assistants, both dietitians, who work under her.

"In the summer, one day there'll be two here, another day there'll be 100," she said. Staff is hired for specific jobs, and special staff are hired for catering in the evening. Many students are hired temporarily during the summer months.

"Most of the women we hire are women whose husbands are working," said Miss Schuh, so they don't mind having irregular work during the summer. "We try to give as much work as possible" to women who are the sole support of their family, she said.

Miss Smith got her home economics degree from the University of Alberta in Edmonton, then went to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto to intern as a dietitian.

She worked for a number of years for the food service department of the University of British Columbia, and later worked in food services for the Seattle School District.

In 1965-66 she went to the University of Missouri to take her master's degree in institution management — exactly what she's doing now. She returned to UBC for a year to teach food chemistry in the home economics department, then in 1968 came to set up the food services department for the University of Victoria.

"There's a tremendous responsibility to put everything together that has to be done," she said of her job.

The food services department isn't funded by the university, so must pay for itself. Money made on catering is important to cover other expenses, said Miss Schuh.

"I'd like to try managing another area," she said, and suggested convention management as a possible choice. All kinds of management involves the same basic ingredients, she said — men, materials, machinery, and money.

She'll never go back to teaching, she said, because it absorbs too much time and constant study.

"Any time I have for myself is very precious," she said.

Co-Op Shopper Cuts Cost

TORONTO (CP) — If you don't mind shopping in an unheated warehouse basement, you can buy apples for nine cents a pound.

Spend a few hours a week unpacking cabbages or weighing cheese and you can cut your food bill by about 20 per cent.

If you join a food co-op, you also can enjoy a feeling that by your own efforts you're battering the system, if not beating it, says Elliot Markson.

Mr. Markson is one of the organizers of the Karma Co-op in a residential area in downtown Toronto. It opened in January with about 25 or 30 members and now has 180 families.

"It started in 1971 when neighbors had a few meetings to organize a co-operative, but nothing ever came of them.

"Then in January, Richard Haney, who is a former super-market manager, said he thought he'd found a place.

Warehouse Basement

"It's a basement in an old warehouse. We pay $1 a square foot each year. At 2,500 square feet that's roughly $185 a month. I think the agent was amenable to renting it to us because nobody else wanted the space."

It is a bare, unheated room partitioned off from the boiler room. If the co-op continues to thrive, Mr. Markson says they hope to have some rewiring done so they can use space heaters without blowing fuses.

"When we actually had a place, people began to join. We charged a $10 membership fee which is non-refundable. In addition, each member pays a $5 loan that is returnable."

The fees plus the loans were used for the first month's rent, for some old refrigerators, for shelving, for the two adding machines that serve instead of cash registers.

"We charge the wholesale price plus 10 per cent to cover expenses, rent and heat. We sold $2,500 worth of stock in one week."

The co-op is staffed by volunteers. It had a paid manager for a while, but he got a better offer and couldn't afford to stay. All members are expected to work, though there is, as always, a core group that is most faithful.

Anyone who has experience in the food business, in accounting and in stock handling is asked to work.

Customer-members are expected to help by sorting their purchases into food and non-food to make figuring the taxes easier. They are encouraged to bring back boxes and bags to be used again.

The store also has a recycling depot attached to it and a rummage sale corner.

Anyone can fill in a card and shop once without a membership.

A commitee does the buying. On a good week they can sometimes borrow a truck to get the goods themselves and save some delivery charges.

"It depends, week to week, on what's available."

Volunteers unpack the goods on Thursday nights, price and stamp and shelve them. The co-op is open Friday afternoon and evening and most of Saturday. Volunteers man the checkout adding machines, weigh and price whatever needs to be weighed.

They sell mostly canned goods, paper goods, fresh fruit and vegetables, health foods and home-made baked goods. They take meat orders a week ahead to be filled at wholesale prices.

Cans for Convenience

"We carry the few cans as a convenience for members," says Mr. Markson. "They don't save much. They save most on produce and on heavily advertised non-foods like wax paper where the supermarket markup is highest.

"Our markup is 10 per cent compared to 18 to 25 per cent in supermarkets.

"We don't always get the best price from wholesalers because big business has said we shouldn't get the same prices they do because they buy more.

"But supermarkets have to sell food higher than we do to cover expenses.

"Some people may say the saving is not worth it to me if I have to work at the co-op and attend meetings.

"But you have the satisfaction of seeing how a business works and the feeling of doing things yourself.

Long Daily Walks 'Best Medicine'

She stuck to her prescription last week and completed her fourth successive Miles for Millions march, taking 12 hours to finish the 32-mile event.

"I was proud to be associated with such a nice bunch of children and they were so thoughtful and kind . . ."

The first year Mrs. Poole completed a 34-mile walk, then 30 miles the next two years.

"I started walking in these old Hush Puppy shoes, about half-way over the route, I changed to some nurse's shoes and I continued without sore feet or any blisters."

Walking is nothing new for Mrs. Poole who manages to get a daily hike even in stormy weather.

"When I was a girl of four years old, I was severely burned from my thighs to my knees and was told I would never walk again. Later, I had leg ailments.

"The continual walking, I'm sure, cured those ailments and I keep walking every day."

POT FEARS BARED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most young people between 12 and 17 who have not tried marijuana say they stayed away from it because they feared physical or mental damage. They are not likely to change their minds even if it became legal, the national commission on marijuana and drug abuse said recently.

The commission, in a newly published appendix to the initial report it made earlier this year, said it asked young people during surveys in August their reasons for abstention, and discovered:

More than half expressed fear of damage to body (58.3 per cent) or mind (54.8 per cent), or said they refrained because it was illegal (52.8 per cent). Slightly under half abstained because they felt marijuana use was morally wrong (47.5 per cent) and slightly more than one-third (35.6 per cent) were concerned about becoming addicted.

About one-fifthe listed fear of arrest (21.3 per cent), rear of jail (17.5 per cent), pressures from family (20.8 per cent) and uncertainty about effect (22.5 per cent). Some young people gave several reasons for refraining.

The commission's March report to President Nixon and Congress said there was little proved danger of physical or psychological harm from experimental or intermittent use of marijuana and that the risk lies in heavy, long-term use. It estimated that 24 million Americans have tried marijuana.

Speedier X-Rays Save Brain

LONDON (UPI) — British scientists have developed a method of extracting 100 times as much information from X-ray plates as in the past and thus opened the way for quicker and more accurate diagnosis of brain maladies.

The new procedure is being termed a breakthrough in the investigation of cerebral disease such as tumors, cysts and hemorrhages and follows three years of experiments by the central research laboratories of a large electronics combine and Britain's research laboratories of a large electronics combine and Britain's department of health and social security.

The system, called computerized transverse axial tomography, combines the speed and accuracy of a computer with highly sensitive x-ray detectors. An examination takes approximately four minutes. During that time the machine rotates around the patient's head taking 56,000 readings from a beam of X-rays.

The computer to which it is linked solves 28,000 simultaneous equations from these readings for each slice of brain under examination. The results are then used to produce pictures on a cathode ray tube viewing unit, which may be examined directly or photographed for more prolonged study.

In the past brain examinations have involved physical and some psychological discomforts which are said to be eliminated by the new technique. At the same time it apparently overcomes the physical problems of x-raying the brain which are compounded by the fact it is soft tissue completely surrounded by dense bone tissue.

"In many cases," said the announcement, "it reveals information which cannot be gained by other means. It is the only satisfactory method for detecting variations in soft tissue which would be well outside the discrimination of conventional X-ray techniques."

Conventional methods of investigating brain conditions, include straightforward X-rays, a technique called angiography and scanning of the brain by radio-active isotope. All of these have disadvantages which computerized transverse axial tomography is said to eliminate.

Among them are the need for specialized medical staff, injection of the patient with radioactive material or radio-opaque substances and the necessity of keeping the patient in the hospital for varying periods.

Lines Around The Mouth

The mouth area comes in for so much attention, the quicker the lines are smoothed out and made to disappear, the younger you will look. A lotion-like substance 2nd Debut applied nightly will make the lines fill in and the skin become smooth once more. You will probably use 2nd Debut on your entire face to banish dryness, but do use a little extra care around your mouth. After applying the 2nd Debut massage very lightly, until it disappears into your skin. Your drug or dept. store has 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 is double strength and you'll find it a genuine delight to use.

dear abby

Happy as a Lark

DEAR ABBY: Since my husband retired nearly a year ago, he has started one project after another; but he hasn't finished any of them.

First, he thoutht it would be nice if we had a vegetable garden, so he dug up the backyard and bought all kinds of seeds; however, he never got around to planting anything. (You can imagine what our backyard looks like!)

Then he decided we needed a patio, so he bought a truckload of sand and a load of bricks. It's been three months, and the bricks and sand are still piled on our back porch, and he hasn't started to "build" anything yet.

Now he is gathering equipment for a woodwork shop in our basement! Abby, he is such a dear man who has really earned his retirement but all he does is read "How To" books and whistle as he takes off for the hardware store to do some more shopping.

I hate to nag him, but what can I do? — Going Crazy

DEAR GOING: Look at it this way: you have a cow pasture for a backyard, a pile of bricks and sand on your porch, and a collection of woodwork equipment in your basement. But you have a husband who is alive, retired, and happy as a lark. If the unfinished projects annoy you, either quietly hire to have them finished, or whistle as you walk around them.

DEAR ABBY: I hope LOW-SLUNG got a lift from your letter telling her that plastic surgeons can actually lift a person's behind. I know I did.

And while we are in that general area, I wonder if your readers know that there are false fannies on the market for women who are flat in back? I should know; I've been wearing one for years.

If you use my letter please don't use my real name. Make up one. — Mrs. X

DEAR MRS. X: How about "SITTING PRETTY?" Or "MRS. BUTTINSKY?" (Sorry, but you really backed into that one.)

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Tuesday, May 16, 1972

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Changes occur, even though you may resist them. Truly, what happens now is for your own good. Home, professional areas are affected. Older individual may be overbearing. But you will land on your feet.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may find yourself dealing with mental lightweights. Be diplomatic, but don't commit yourself to any definite course. Many around you act in confused manner. Extricate yourself from impossible situation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Young person who advocates spending does not care about your budget. Know this and be sensible. You cannot buy love. Save your money. Message should become increasingly clear. Pisces is involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may be temporarily thwarted by legal technicality. However, basic position is strong. One who has financial requirements is in your corner. Property could be sold at profit. Let go of past.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Time now to finish, to complete, to review where you are going. Some secrets are revealed as persons confide and confess to you. Relatives are prone to act in eccentric manner. Maintain your own balance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good news received from one who is in transit. You get proverbial chance to "start over." Make the most of it. Put your own ideas into action. Leo is involved. Gain shown through unorthodox methods.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Personality sparkles. Those "at top" are apt to take notice. Follow hunch. Intuitive intellect is working overtime. You make significant advance. Sense of security is heightened. Home improvements show.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Taurus message. Some persons now may appear free-and-easy but could actually be tense. Key is to be flexible. Reserve right to utilize alternatives. Refuse to be tied down or restricted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent is on finances, investments. Important to be thorough where details are concerned. Break through superficiality. Get at facts. Truth can bring peace of mind. Know it and act accordingly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Find alternatives. Investigate. Find reasons why recent events have occurred. Go to out-of-way places, consult unorthodox sources. Read and ask — answers are obtainable. Be a careful, shrewd observer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Harmonize relationships at home. Make concession. Low-key role now proves most constrictive. Taurus and Libra are involved. What occurs behind scenes is apt to favor you. Friend will bring good news.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emotions are intensified. Nothing occurs in lukewarm manner. It is apt to be all or nothing. Specific emphasis is on affairs of heart. Member of opposite sex may not be telling whole truth.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, creative, not easy to understand. It if not easy for others to fool you, but you can do a fair job of that yourself. Important to see persons as they exist rather then in idealistic way. By October you will make move which could involve travel and marriage.

(To find out more about yourself and astrology, order Sydney Omarr's 50-page booklet, "The Truth About Astrology." Send birthdate and 75 cents (no cheques) to Omarr Booklet, c-o Vicoria Times.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DEE — In loving memory of our daughter Sylvia, who passed away ten years ago today.
Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory sad and true.
Just the love and sweet devotion
Of the one who thinks of you.
Always remembered and sadly missed, — Mom, Dad, your brother Alan, and Ada.

READING — In loving memory of Rex, my dear husband, who passed away May 15, 1970.
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
To sit and talk with him awhile,
To be together in the same old way,
Would be my dearest wish today.
Dear Lord, forgive a silent tear,
A constant wish that he were here.
Others are taken, yes I know,
But he was mine and I loved him so.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

The Good Ship Hope

One of the finest things we do in the United States is to support the great hospital ship "Hope", which is constantly going out to help the doctors and nurses and social workers in countries that are understaffed and have poorly trained men and women in the medical care of the people. The Hope has a medical staff of 125 persons, all well-trained volunteers, who are glad to help their fellow men in distant countries.

The principle on which the Hope works is a good one; rather than simply bringing help to the people without regard for the persons already working there, and thus "competing" with the local people, they work with local doctors and others. They train others and share ideas, so that when the hospital ship leaves perhaps months later, it leaves behind it well-trained persons who are a part of the community.

Recently the Hope was in the West Indies, where 1,710 much-needed operations were performed. There were 1,281 patients visiting the ship, 116,722 vaccinations made, and 66,869 examinations of patients.

Just imagine what it can mean to a child with a cleft lip and to his mother to have this defect corrected by one of the Hope's surgeons. One thing that the Hope's doctors do is to help the local physicians keep up to date on medicine and surgical techniques. When the Hope leaves after being stationed at a port somewhere, it is heart-warming to see the gratitude of the crowds that come to the wharf to say good-bye.

Mrs. Dollie Cole, wife of the president of General Motors Corporation, said "Hope is the ideal activity for women, because here they have the chance to extend their hand of help to those who need it so badly all over the world."

AN ARAB BOY'S LIFE SAVED IN ISRAEL

I heard a while ago that the Arabs, when very ill, go to the great Hadassah hospital in Israel to get medical help. Several years ago, a two-year-old Arab boy drank some lye which caused his gullet to be so plugged up that for the next two years he had to live on milk alone. He could not eat any solid food at all, and in time, he began to have troubles swallowing and breathing.

Then he was sent to the Hadassh hospital, where Dr. Isaac Gay, who had been trained in surgery at Ohio State University in the United States, operated on the boy, replacing the burned espophagus (gullet) with a segment of his own large intestine. Fortunately, the boy recovered, and now he has grown to normal height and weight for his five years, and is completely free of any complications.

PROPANE TALKS SUCCESSFUL: NEGOTIATOR

The negotiator for four propane gas companies involved in a contract dispute with the Teamsters Union said today the issue "appears near to a solution."

Carl Anshelm, president of Transport Labor Relations, which bargains for Cigas Products, Canadian Propane, Northwest Propane and Vigas, said negotiations resumed Friday night and continued all weekend.

He said reasonable progress has been made and negotiations will continue Wednesday.

The companies have formally offered a two-year agreement with an hourly wage increase of 40 cents this year and 40 cents next year and an improvement in the health and welfare plan, he said.

Last week, TLR served 72-hour lockout notice. The four firms represent more than 90 per cent of the propane gas industry in British Columbia and industry and a number of homes would be affected if there is a shutdown.

80,000 Miles by Wheelchair

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charlie Brown of San Francisco might have spent the last 20 years in a bed, virtually immobilized as a result of an accident which cost him both legs and his left arm.

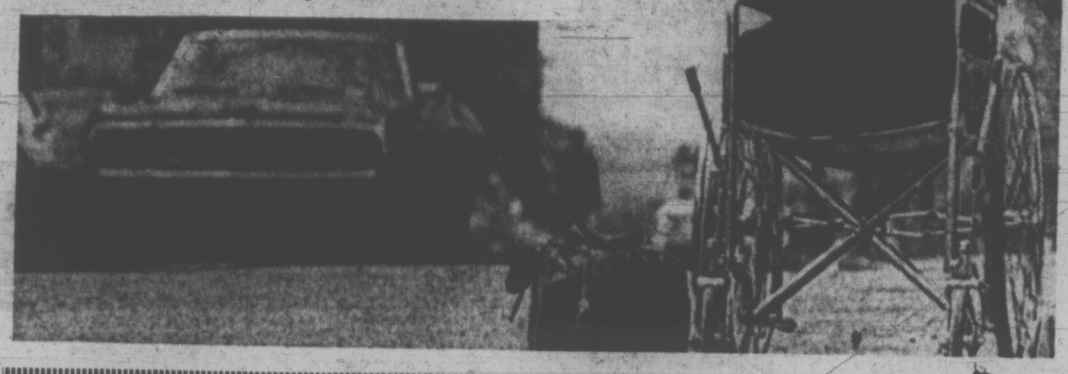
"I fought my way out of a hospital bed they said I'd never leave," the 37-year-old amputee says. "My big dream was to hitch the 50 states."

Nine years later, the dream was a reality. Since then he has travelled through North and South America and Europe and visited the Arctic Circle, a total of 80,000 miles.

Ultimately, Charlie said, he wants to return to San Francisco to write books. But before that he hopes to see Antarctica, Africa, Asia and Australia.



Local Riders Win Trophies

The show, sponsored by Duncan's Vimy Western Riding Club, was held at their private ring and lasted from 9 a.m. to 9:15 p.m.

Mrs. Rimmer, who previously won two island trail competitions this year, was riding Dun's Mischief. She came first in the trail horse, western reining and western pleasure classes and second in the western equitation class.

Hansen Sees Fall Vote

"With David Anderson gone from federal politics, the NDP's chances of electing a member of Parliament from the Victoria riding are considerably improved," he said.

Hansen said there was a need for a strong voice in Ottawa against oil polluters that "can only be met with the election of a New Democrat."

Cuban Medics Aiding Hanoi

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Cuban medical volunteers went into action for the first time since their arrival in Hanoi as United States air raids against North Vietnam continued Friday.

The North Vietnam news agency said members of the Cuban medical brigade treated casualties at Thru Cinh village, where 50 houses were reduced to rubble.

Woman's Touch In Chinese Policy

PEKING (Reuter) — China has appointed five new vice-foreign ministers in a move seen here as underlining a serious effort to improve international relations.

Two foreign ministry assistants—including a woman believed to be Chairman Mao Tse-tung's niece—have also been named.

Diplomatic sources said today the appointment of so many at the same time shows how much China's role in world affairs has developed in the last year, and how big a part foreign affairs now play in top-level thinking and policy.

The new appointments were announced in a note to diplomatic missions here.

The two foreign ministry assistants are Miss Wang Haijung, believed related to Chairman Mao, and Chang Wen-chin.

The five new names are Chung Hsi-tung, Ma Wen-po, Ho Ying, Fu Hao and Yu Chan.

Fu previously was director-general at the foreign affairs ministry and Chang was director of the ministry's Western European and American department.

CELIA FRANCA

A Tough Tune for Troupe

LONDON (CP) — Canada's National Ballet company begins a tough round of rehearsals today in preparation for its gala European debut Wednesday before Princess Anne, Prime Minister Heath and the cream of Britain's ballet world.

The 82-strong company—including a full stage crew as well as 54 dancers—flew into London Sunday. Some technicians and a planeload of $156,000 worth of scenery arrived last week, preceded by publicity director Joe Lewis and artistic director Celia Franca, who is making her first professional visit to Britain since she left here for Canada in 1951.

The dancers see London as the key in establishing the international recognition they hope to achieve in the seven-week European tour.

As well as top critics, the first-night audience watching La Sylphide and The Mirror Walkers will include such ballet figures as Dame Ninette de Valois, Marie Ramert and Sir Frederick Ahston. Miss Franca studied under Rambert and danced with Dame Ninette's Sadler's Wells company before heading for Canada, where she founded the National Ballet in 1951.

The first night will mean a double dose of tension for Miss Franca, who as well as supervising the production is dancing the role of the witch in Sylphide.

The company is presenting nine ballets during its 10-day London tour, including Swan Lake and The Judgment of Paris.

Variations Apparent In Dogwood Flowers

When we grow plants from casually produced seeds (open-pollinated is the term used by hybridists) we must expect variations to be apparent in the seedlings.

This Dogwood is Cornus nuttalli, usually seen as a tree from eight to 40 feet high. Until they bloom you may not notice them, for the large white bracts are the great show in May. They occur in clusters of four, five or six bracts, each measuring one-and-a-half inches in length.

In the centre are the tiny true flowers with purple petals, hardly noticeable except at close range. These later turn to bright red fruits, a source of food for birds who distribute the seeds.

The number of bracts varies from four to six, resulting in a difference in size of the bloom. Some trees appear a complete mass of white with no green leaves showing. Others seem more sparsely covered though the number of blooms would seem comparable. Possibly these are trees with more of the four-bract flower heads. It is difficult to decide these points while passing on the highway.

Since the native Dogwoods are always grown from seed, it means that we must wait until our tree makes flower heads before we can be sure whether we have good form or a superb one. Seldom do we see a really poor Dogwood.

When local nurserymen propagated most of their own shrubs and trees, they would start batches of Dogwood seedlings, growing them on in containers until a saleable size of four feet was reached.

Not until the trees reach seven years from seed should you expect blooms. In fact we say between eight and 12 years one can hope for results, the variableness again due to their being seedlings.

Other Dogwoods grown here are the golden leaved Cornus nuttalli Eddyii, which will not be variable since it is vegetatively propagated; Cornus kousa, the Chinese or Japanese Dogwood with pinkish dark green leaves and white bracts; Cornus florida, the Eastern Dogwood and its pink form rubra; and Cornus alba, the Tatarian Dogwood from North China and Siberia. In the variety Gouchaulti, the leaves are yellowish white and pink, lovely in summer for its sparkling effect. I have not seen this in bloom.

The planting of small specimens from containers is the only way to success for the home gardener. One has the pleasure of watching the Dogwood develop its characteristic shape. Then one fall, you see the flat blossom heads appearing just as the leaves drop, giving the promise of spring flowers.

Some trees of C. nuttalli flower again, but more sparsely, in August. This too is a seedling variation, since not all show this habit.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, our South declarer committed an error, and thereby lost a game contract that a more thoughtful player would have fulfilled. Can you find declarer's error?

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1◇	Pass	2♣	Pass
2◇	Pass	3◇	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

When South bid three notrump, he knew he was gambling. But he had a hand that contained 15 high-card points, plus a very workable diamond suit which partner had supported. And north rated to have 11-12 points, since his initial two-over-one bid of two clubs promised a minimum of 10 points. Actually, South made the winning bid when he bid three notrump. Unfortunately, he mishandled his contract.

Dummy's queen of spades was put up on the opening lead, East winning the trick with his ace. East returned the spade eight, West overtook with the nine, and dummy's king won the trick. The diamond queen was led next, West's ace winning. West now cashed three spade tricks, and declarer was down one. What was declarer's error?

South's mistake was the putting up of dummy's spade queen at trick one. He should have played the spade six instead. West would then have continued spades, dummy's queen falling to East's ace. Whatever East now returned (he had no more spades), South would win and establish his diamond suit while dummy still retained the spade king as a stopper.

By playing a low spade from dummy at trick one, the only situations where this would turn out badly would be when West started with either the A-J-10-x-x or the A-J-10-x-x-x of spades and the ace of diamonds. But West was most unlikely to have held either of these hands, for if he had he surely would have made a non-vulnerable overcall of one spade over South's opening one-diamond bid.

It should be pointed out that if the adversely-held seven spades were divided 4-3, then whether or not dummy's spade queen was played at trick one, South would fulfill his contract. With this distribution existing, South would lose just three spades and one diamond.

By playing the spade six from dummy at trick one, South would assure his contract whenever East happened to possess the doubleton A-x of spades. The spade suit would now become "blocked"—and unestablishable for the defenders.

Waterfront Plan Bared by City

By WALTER McKINNON
Times Staff

A long-term proposal for development of Victoria's waterfront, stressing maximum public benefit from the 12.9 miles of sea frontage, has been unveiled by the city planning department.

It has not formally been before city council, but Ald. Mike Young said today aldermen have seen it and "in general terms they were very happy with design and concept."

The proposal, drafted by planners James Moody and Graham Stallard, recommends such things as:

● Development of the Inner Harbor area primarily for public recreation use, with removal of the present Black Ball Ferry terminal for park development;

● Redevelopment of the warehouse area across from the Inner Harbor, south of the Johnson Street Bridge, for medium-density residential use, including townhouses;

● Dual-use development of the McKay-Cormack property south of the Inner Harbor and Fisherman's Wharf — soon to be occupied by Oakland Industries, as a combined commercial cannery and tourist attraction;

● And generally more public access and park development on the entire waterfront.

Some of the recommendations for the future could be nullified by developments the planners and council have no control over, he said.

For purposes of the proposal, planners have broken up the waterfront into five general areas — the Gorge, working harbor, Inner Harbor, Outer Harbor and Juan de Fuca area.

They visualize, at least for the foreseeable future, both the Gorge and the Juan de Fuca areas remaining as developed urban-residential, with more public access than either offers at present.

The working harbor, generally both sides of the Gorge from Johnson Street Bridge north to the Canadian National Railways trestle, is seen as relatively stable and essential to the area's economy.

However, Stollard points out, a decision to change the type of operation — or close down any one of a number of sites in that area could open new possibilities for the working harbor.

Many of the industrial operations centred on the working harbor, Stollard says, were established at a time when ocean access was vital. Today, however, there are other priorities — such as land transportation access.

"There are certain essential activities to the economy of the region," but where they require to be located is not now known, he says.

The proposals are still in draft form. Stollard and Moody say they should be consolidated into a report for council and public presentation later this month.

Moody says Mayor Peter Pollen saw initial working drawings and recommendations, was enthusiastic and asked for a full report.

The planners visualize some of their recommendations coming to fruition within three years, while others may not take place for as long as 15 years.

STILL MORE PROBLEMS faced Montreal police as they attempted to deal with a demonstration Saturday in protest against the Vietnam war. A motorcycle policeman is struck by a banner during the height of the protest.

No End Seen Of Turmoil In Quebec

Times News Services

QUEBEC — Province-wide labor unrest entered its second week today with further walkouts in some areas and efforts to get back to normal in others.

About 1,800 liquor board employees here and in Montreal walked off the job in some liquor stores, warehouses and administrative offices.

A surprise 24-hour walkout by 800 blue collar employees in Quebec City began at 8 a.m. An unknown number of postal workers walked out at the post office here today and door-to-door mail delivery stopped indefinitely.

Several hospitals were hit by illegal walkouts forcing supervisory staff and volunteers to fill gaps.

In Sept-Iles, Quebecair and Air Canada, the two airlines serving the south shore community, suspended operations Sunday afternoon.

A provincial police spokesman said the airlines made the decision to cancel the flights. There were reports the airlines received a telephone call warning that the airport would be blown up if airline traffic continued.

Two small fires were set Sunday night at the Quebec Cartier mining site at Port Cartier, causing about $1,000 damage, police said.

Norbert Rodrigue, spokesman for the common front of public servants, lashed out today at Premier Robert Bourassa's statement Sunday that there were scheduled union-government meetings which could bring early settlement of Quebec's labor problems.

BAD FAITH

Rodrigue said no talks between common front leaders and newly-appointed Civil Service Minister Jean Cournoyer had been held and none were planned.

"The Quebec government has once again shown proof of its bad faith by making false insinuations," he said.

He said on the weekend three Quebec labor presidents will not appeal one-year sentences for contempt of court imposed last Monday.

Bourassa in a television interview Sunday said he was convinced negotiations with

PUPIL POWER ERUPTS IN U.K.

LONDON (AP) — Teen-age revolutionaries have raised the banner of pupil power and called a strike for Wednesday in London's schools.

Among their demands: No more caning, no more staying after school, no more censorship of school magazines, no more school uniforms and free milk every day.

The School Action Union, known to have links with several grown-up leftist groups, said if the one-day strike in London is successful, a country-wide pupil walkout will be its next move.

Strike leaders claimed pupils from at least 72 of London's 224 schools will take the day off on Red Wednesday.

They hope about 10,000 will rally in Trafalgar Square and march on County Hall, the administrative seat of London.

About 100 youths between 12 and 18 met Sunday at a planning session in a curtained room in a London back street. Most wore Mao badges and said they were Marxists. Police detectives questioned several of the leaders later.

"Don't take my picture," one youngster pleaded with news photographers. "My mother thinks I'm at an art gallery. I'd lose my pocket money if she knew I wasn't."

S. Viets Pushing Reds From Hue

South Vietnamese troops today continued to strengthen their position around the city of Hue — believed to be the next target in the current North Vietnamese offensive.

Saigon troops today re-occupied Fire Base Bastogne, 12 miles west of Hue following 36 hours of fierce fighting and B-52 saturation strikes.

Allied forces are also only a stones throw from another important fire base called Checkmate on a hill overlooking Bastogne, according to Associated Press front-line correspondent Peter Arnett.

The drive to the two fire bases was made by more than 2,000 men advancing on foot behind a shield of artillery fire and U.S. bomber support.

"We are fighting for elbow room," one U.S. adviser said of the fighting around Hue.

South Vietnamese officers, however, said they were more interested in destroying enemy troops than re-occupying the fire bases.

We'll raise the flag, but the main objective of this

OWEN SOUND VOTES TO END DROUGHT

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — After 66 years of abstinence, Owen Sound has agreed by plebiscite to licence liquor and dining lounges.

Voters were 7 0per cent favorable to dining lounges and 64 per cent for liquor lounges. However, wine stores and beverage rooms were rejected since they won less than the 60 per cent favorable votes needed. Only 57 per cent favored wine stores and 50 per cent beverage rooms.

The city went "dry" in 1906, although Royal Canadian Legion branches, military messes and private clubs were allowed to dispense liquor.

Right to Strike Call Rallies CLC

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The ninth biennial convention of the Canadian Labor Congress opened today with close to 1,800 delegates rallying to a call to defend the right to strike.

"The right of organized workers to withhold their labor is, in the final analysis, the only way in which the collective bargaining process can remain viable," CLC president Donald MacDonald said in his opening address.

"If the right to strike is outlawed," he said, "bargaining can be nothing more than chit-chat between the employer and the union, with the employer in the end unilaterally decreeing wages, salaries and other working conditions.

MacDonald attacked the Quebec government for ending an 11-day strike of 210,000 provincial employees with back-to-work legislation in April.

"If this is to be the future pattern of collective bargaining in the public sector of Quebec let us call it what it is, company unionism," he said.

He cautioned delegates not to permit confusion between compulsory and voluntary arbitration.

There was nothing undemocratic about voluntary arbitration in which two parties agreed to accept the findings of a third party. Compulsory arbitration, however, is a "simplistic, authoritarian weapon aimed at the heart of the collective bargaining process."

Another convention speaker, Ontario Premier William Davis said the collective bargaining process was not perfect but it was the best system there was.

9 Dead in Belfast Battle

Times News Services

BELFAST — British paratroopers clamped an armored grip on Belfast's Roman Catholic Ballymurphy area today. Authorities revised upward the number of dead in the worst Catholic-Protestant battle in three years of strife.

Army spokesmen said today at least nine persons died in weekend fighting between opposing religious groups, with the British army caught in the crossfire between them.

The weekend fighting brought to 327 the number of dead in Northern Ireland since British troops arrived in August, 1969, to control strife between the majority Protestants and outnumbered Catholics. The army said two of the weekend's nine dead were killed Friday night or early Saturday morning.

The army said quiet prevailed early today on the battlefield of bullet-scarred buildings between the Ballymurphy district, one of the toughest Catholic enclaves in the city, and the Protestant Springmartin housing development.

"But there is still a lot of tension in the air," one British officer said. "It won't take much to touch things off again."

More than 2,000 shots were fired in the 36-hour battle, and more than 70 civilians and soldiers were wounded.

The battle began Saturday afternoon when a bomb in a car blasted Kelly's Bar, on the edge of Ballymurphy. The Catholics charged that Protestants planted the bomb; the army said it believed it belonged to the Irish Republican Army and went off prematurely.

The pub was jammed with soccer fans watching an international match on television, and 53 persons, including some children playing outside, were wounded. Two men seen near the car when it blew up may have been killed.

Snipers hidden along the grassy edge of the Springmartin estate opened fire on the crowd which raced to the blast scene. IRA guerrillas

NOW WE KNOW FOR SURE . . . MONEY IS REALLY DIRTY

CHICAGO (CP) — A couple of Kentucky doctors have found that money is really dirty and have published a tongue-in-cheek paper on their findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The doctors borrowed 62 pennies, 38 nickles, 27 dimes, 33 quarters and 50 paper bills of small denomination, with no discrimination as to age, sex, color or religion of the lender, so the results would be unbiased. They then cultured the coins and bills.

They discovered that 13 per cent of the coins and 42 per cent of the bills were contaminated by potentially disease-causing bacteria. Pennies, nickels and small denomination paper bills were more often contaminated than larger coins and bills, a fact they explained was logically due to the rapid turnover and frequent exchange of small coins and bills.

1. Keep your money in the bank.
2. If you must carry money, carry only large bills, preferably the $50 and $100 denominations.
3. Don't make change.
4. Keep your hands out of your pockets.
5. Get rid of your money rapidly.
6. Campaign against piggy banks.

The authors concluded sadly: "Despite the importance of this study, the investigators fear that people will continue to handle, fondle and jingle in their pockets — money."

As a panacea they suggested: "In order to further this research, we will accept and examine any money sent to us. If it is found to be contaminated, we have facilities for its safe disposal."

Authors are Drs. Berel L. Abrams and Norton G. Waterman from the department of Surgery, University of Louisville School of Medicine.

A New Peace Proposal: Call Off That Hockey

Dear Diary: As I make this entry the Yankee planes are aswarm over North Vietnam. The great powers are looking down each other's throats. Once more, the chances for a peaceful world seem perilous.

As if all that weren't feverish enough it now seems a certainty that Canada will be playing Russia in a hockey tournament this autumn. Me, I'm heading for that secret cave in the Sooke hills until it all blows up or blows over.

Just why anyone in his right mind should see anything to be gained by pitting our muscle-men on skates against their muscle-men on skates is something that totally eludes me. Hockey, at this professional level, has become the most savage of games. It is far and away the most idiotic, pointless expression of cretinous nationalism that has been invented short of war. Win or lose, the recriminations are inevitable.

You need merely to have watched the final games of the Stanley Cup play-offs to see how passions are aroused, in the holy name of box office receipts, by a contest that seems a microcosm of human violence and brutality, an extension of all the dumb things that divide nations and ideologies.

If athletes are to be good-will ambassadors, if sports are to be a means of bringing nations closer together, let's stick to ping pong players.

Dear Diary: To the racing at Vancouver's Exhibition Park this sunny afternoon, my first visit there since the day that old Dave and I tested The Infallible System.

Dave was a pensioner who lived in a cluttered, one-room shack up the road from our place on Salt Spring Island, Dublin-born (he was once runner-up in the all-Ireland welterweight boxing championship) and with an Irish brogue that was riper than Barry Fitzgerald's. He was the happiest, most self-reliant old man I've ever known, immersed in a dozen hobbies from bread-making to the growing of African Violets.

Over the years that we were friends Dave was constantly at work on a mathematical system to beat the ponies. He was 83 years of age when he arrived at the formula he called The Infallible System and had tested it against form charts sent to him from a dozen tracks across Canada and the United States.

Dave had determined that there's a constant, recurring pattern in the number of favorites who win, place or show in races involving high-calibre thoroughbreds in allowance or stakes events.

Phase Two was to evolve a parley system of betting, each progressive bet compensating for a previous race that hasn't gone to form. This form of inverted pyramid betting requires not only nerves of steel, but, more importantly, a sizable capital outlay to cover barren stretches when the public choices fail to come in. Old Dave had the nerves. The capital, on a monthly pension cheque, was something else.

That day we went to Exhibition Park was simply to demonstrate how, in eight races, the system worked. Dave wore his lucky tie with the hand-painted shamrocks on it, since cold mathematics, he explained required the company of Lady Luck.

My skepticism had gone completely when we boarded the ferry home that night, chuckling and simpering over our profits. We discussed endlessly our plan to bring a millionaire in as a third partner, to travel to Hialeah, Santa Anita, Aqueduct, Belmont, Churchill Downs, wherever the beasts were running and the sun was shining.

A month later old Dave was dead, gone peacefully in his sleep. The Infallible System had calculated all of the odds except that one sure thing.

Dear Diary: All manner of chiding and advising letters though the week as the result of my confession that I've never managed to get through Leo Tolstoy's War and Peace.

One kindly gentleman even provides a chart showing the entire cast of characters and their relationship to each other, a sort of you-can't-tell-the-players-without-a-program that he has devised after a dozen readings of the novel.

I particularly prize the advice of Sophia Preisman, of the University of Victoria library, a woman whose many degrees were earned in Vienna, Florence and Montreal and clearly a devoted Tolstoy reader. Some of her suggestions:

"Do not read War and Peace sitting by an azure swimming pool. Do read it sitting in your most comfortable chair without any inside or outside distractions. Disregard the long names plus patronymics or you will mix up all the characters. Do differentiate between names just by remembering their initials, 'K', 'B', etc.

"Do read about Tolstoy, himself, a great writer and a great man. Do read about this tragic period in Russia's history and you will understand more of the present. Do not miss this feast of narrative, action and sheer zest of life. There is nothing in world literature to compare it with. People are alive, they love, they hate, they repent, they die. You will want to read it over and over."

Well, there goes my summer.

Developer Appeals to Minister

Victoria Times
MONDAY, MAY 15, 1972 21
SECOND SECTION

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

The power of the B.C. municipal affairs minister to overrule regional board planning decisions may be demonstrated soon over a subdivision attempt on Gabriola Island.

Wildwood Estates, a development company that wants to turn 244 acres of an old farm into 250 single lots on Gabriola, one of the Gulf Islands near Nanaimo, has appealed the decision last month by the Nanaimo Regional Board to turn down the development.

Wildwood Estates applied for a development permit and after a public hearing on the island April 19, the board refused to write a land use contract which would spring the development.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will have to make a decision on whether to use the power he was given by a controversial amendment to the Municipal Act in 1971.

Wildwood Estates has appealed the regional board ruling and turned the question over to Campbell.

Campbell was not available for comment today but referred to one of his officials, who said this was the first time to his knowledge that the amendment was being put to the test.

Announcement of the appeal is to be printed in local journals today an action which will formally begin the appeal process.

The minister can simply overrule the board's decision and force a land use contract to be written between the regional board and the developer. But in any case, a new public hearing into the case will be held, according to the official.

The notice of appeal has already got Gabriola citizens in a state of worry that they will see their organized opposition to the subdivision come to nothing.

A spokesman, June Harrison, said she understood that people in the Gulf Islands would be allowed to participate in the planning of the islands, because of statements to that effect by Campbell.

"We took him at his word, fools that we are," she said.

She also said Campbell told her last week that a public hearing will be held.

● At the April 19 public hearing a large number of people turned out to oppose the subdivision attempt, leading to the regional board's decision to turn down the subdivision and produce an overall plan for the island, with citizen participation.

The amendment giving the municipal affairs minister the power to over-rule regional planning decision brought howls from municipal officials across the province in 1971.

The municipal affairs department official said there is definitely no decision by Campbell so far.

The announcement merely states the fact that the appeal has been registered with the department under the amendment.

Mrs. Harrison said the problems of allowing large subdivision development on Gabriola include availability of water and ferry service.

She said already there is often a seven-hour wait for people who live on the island, which is about 25 minutes from Nanaimo. The government has promised a new ferry which will increase the car-carrying capacity from about 21 to about 30 cars.

Water is scarce on Gabriola, and water table formations are such that wells dug on certain parts of the island will dry up wells already established.

Mrs. Harrison said the residents of Gabriola had been promised that any new subdivision or other development would follow a properly prepared plan, rather than the plan following subdivisions.

'Unified greens' will replace navy blues for cadets

Cadets Balk at New Uniform

Navy League of Canada officials are protesting a department of national defence edit that sea cadets soon will be compelled to wear berets and green uniforms.

The loss of the navy uniforms and seaman caps is part of an over-all program that will put all cadet units — sea, land and air — into greens.

But the department insists sea cadets wear berets, in spite of country-wide opposition by the Navy League.

In Ottawa, Jack Hodge, the league's general manager, says the retention of the seaman's cap by sea cadets is still "a live issue". He said if the department persists in putting the sea cadets into a beret they will be going back on their undertaking.

Les Hammer of Port Alberni, president of the league's Vancouver Island division, accuses the department of "arrogance" in issuing the green uniform and green beret order.

There are nine sea cadet corps (more than 1,000 sea cadets on the island and Hammer says a poll taken of cadets showed them overwhelmingly in favor of retaining the navy-style uniform.

The newly-formed Army League has expressed approval of the new uniforms for army cadets and the Air Cadet League has found most of their cadets willing to accept the new uniform, although some regret losing the air force blue.

Hammer says army cadets will lose little because the new uniforms are still in their style. In contrast, he says sea cadets will lose identity and the esprit de corps which keeps them one of the most healthy of the three cadet organizations.

Defence Minister Edgar Benson and his cadet advisers say the new uniforms will bring enthusiasm and end a slump in cadet enrolment. They quoted over-all figures — in 1970, 86,000 cadets; 1971, 75,000 and in January 1972, 72,000.

Hammer contends that the new uniforms will result in a continuation of the downward spiral.

"These figures are for all cadets," he explains. "When it comes to sea cadets, we increased enrolment last year and it looks as if we'll be doing the same this year."

Hammer said the department is not living up to its agreement with the league.

"The Navy League started in 1896 in Canada and were training boys long before there was a navy. The navy only came into the cadet picture in the Second World War when they were looking for recruits among sea cadet corps."

Hammer said that when the cadet act was passed in the 1940s it was agreed that the league would be in equal partnership with the department of cadet maters.

"There is no longer a 50-50 "the word navy has now become a bad word in the department's official jargon."

Hammer says the new uniforms, 600 of which will be issued on a trial basis this fall, are a "terrific and unnecessary expense for the taxpayers of Canada."

"We have Navy League cadets in sailor uniforms. Once they see sea cadets in green they'll want to be like their bigger brothers. The whole thing is wrong."

Wade Files Suit

Writs claiming damages for libel have been issued against Mayor Peter Pollen, the publishers of the two Victoria newspapers, and Victoria Times reporter Paul Moss, by architect John Wade, second vice-chairman of the city's Advisory Planning Commission.

The writs arise from a statement issued last week by the mayor which criticized Mr. Wade's attitude to town planning and requested him to resign from the Commission. The mayor's statement, which came in the form of a press release from City Hall, was reported in the Victoria Times on May 9 and the Daily Colonist on May 10, as well as by local radio stations.

The Times published the report in good faith, feeling it had a responsibility to convey to its readers the mayor's publicly-stated views on a matter of great local interest. It had no intention of impugning Mr. Wade's reputation and integrity and apologizes unreservedly for any embarrassment suffered by Mr. Wade as a result of publication of the press release from the mayor's office.

No Surrender For Tisdalle

The Social Credit MLA for Saanich and the Islands, defeated by lawyer Foster Isherwood for his party's nomination last Friday, still has a chance for the nomination.

He said today the party's constitution stipulates that a nomination from a riding association can only stand for six months, after which time a new nominating convention must be held.

Asked if there is a chance of no election being called between now and six months, Tisdalle said: "I think there's a good 50-50 chance of that."

He cited the economic situation in the province, including labor unrest between unions and management in the construction and forest industries, as reasons for no election being called in the near future.

"I don't know if this discord and unrest can be sorted out into a good election issue. I kind of doubt it," he said.

Tisdalle also said he would not lodge a formal protest with the party executive about the Friday nominating meeting, despite being asked to do so by several party members.

"This is a problem for the organization itself, not my problem," he said. "They have got to straighten it out themselves."

Of his opponent Isherwood, Tisdalle said: "If they want to choose a loser instead of a winner, which is what they've done, that's not my problem, it's theirs."

"If they say John Tisdalle is shrieking or irate because he lost, they're wrong. The only time you'll find me shrieking or irate is when the press gets it wrong."

Tisdalle was referring to a wire service report which quoted him as saying he would protest the nominating convention. A second wire service story today had him denying this.

Tisdalle also said the outcome of the meeting might have been different if some delegates from Pender Island had not missed the ferry which was to bring them to the Saanich meeting.

If the meeting had been held on one of the Gulf Islands, instead of in Saanich, there would have been "very few people from Saanich attending," he said.

Tisdalle said his oath of office as an MLA requires him to fulfill his term, including any future session of the present legislature Premier Bennett may call.

CRASH KILLS THREE

Gordon Chester New, 58, of 1701 Cedar Hill Cross Road, was dead on arrival at Chemainus General Hospital after the collision two miles north of Chemainus on Trans-Canada Highway.

Police said he was travelling alone when his car met one occupied by Andrew Samarin, 68, of 696 Second Street, Nanaimo, and his wife Rosa.

Mrs. Samarin and New are believed to have died instantly and Samarin died at Ladysmith General Hospital.

Nanaimo coroner C. F. Newcombe has ordered an inquest.

Chemainus RCMP said there were a number of witnesses to the accident who had not yet been interviewed in detail.

It appeared the cars came together near the middle of the highway, which at that slight rise.

point is straight and on a

New's car was being driven south and the Samarin car was headed north. The time was 2:20 p.m. and visibility was good.

Galiano Worries

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Galiano Island became a "tight little island" Saturday when residents moved to control future development of their 18-mile-long domain.

A total of 250 residents — most of the island's adult population — decided at a meeting to appoint a committee to work out a community plan to control a large number of subdivisions proposed by MacMillan Bloedel Realty, owners of three quarters of the island.

The company lands are operated as tree farms which enjoy tax concessions for growing timber. Earlier this year, it decided to go into real estate and sell some of the property for subdivision developments.

The meeting was attended by James Campbell, Outer Islands representative of the Capital regional board, and W. R. McCrimmon of MacMillan Bloedel in Vancouver.

Campbell told the meeting "either you prepare a community plan for developing this island or MacMillan Bloedel will do it for you."

He pointed out that unlike mainland cities and urban centres on Vancouver Island, Galiano has only so much land and its expansion is limited.

"You should decide what the population density of this island should be and what protection should be given to preserve its environment and resources," he said.

Campbell took issue with McCrimmon's statement that MacMillan Bloedel real estate plans had been distorted by the press.

McCrimmon was referring to a Times report which stated the company had proposed to subdivide three lots to an acre.

"What the Victoria Times published was true and were facts submitted in one of your company's letters," he said.

Campbell produced the letter and challenged McCrimmon to prove it otherwise...

McCrimmon was asked if the company had made a study to determine if there was sufficient water for their proposed subdivisions.

He said studies were made but he was unable to give any details.

"I think MacMillan Bloedel should back off from this entire plan," said resident Geoff Spencer. "We don't want to become the Black Hole of Calcutta — we'd become the Green Hell of Galiano.

"You have enjoyed tax-free land for growing trees and now that the land is worth more as real estate, you plan to sell it," said another member of the audience.

Waterfront Plan Bared by City

By WALTER McKINNON
Times Staff

A long-term proposal for development of Victoria's waterfront, stressing maximum public benefit from the 12.9 miles of sea frontage, has been unveiled by the city planning department.

It has not formally been before city council, but Ald. Mike Young said today aldermen have seen it and "in general terms they were very happy with design and concept."

The proposal, drafted by planners James Moody and Graham Stallard, recommends such things as:

● Development of the Inner Harbor area primarily for public recreation use, with removal of the present Black Ball Ferry terminal for park development;

● Redevelopment of the warehouse area across from the Inner Harbor, south of the Johnson Street Bridge, for medium-density residential use, including townhouses;

● Dual-use development of the McKay-Cormack property south of the Inner Harbor and Fisherman's Wharf — soon to be occupied by Oakland Industries, as a combined commercial cannery and tourist attraction;

● And generally more public access and park development on the entire waterfront.

Some of the recommendations for the future could be nullified by developments the planners and council have no control over, he said.

For purposes of the proposal, planners have broken up the waterfront into five general areas — the Gorge, working harbor, Inner Harbor, Outer Harbor and Juan de Fuca area.

They visualize, at least for the foreseeable future, both the Gorge and the Juan de Fuca areas remaining as developed urban-residential, with more public access than either offers at present.

The working harbor, generally both sides of the Gorge from Johnson Street Bridge north to the Canadian National Railways trestle, is seen as relatively stable and essential to the area's economy.

However, Stallard points out, a decision to change the type of operation — or close down any one of a number of sites in that area could open new possibilities for the working harbor.

Many of the industrial operations centred on the working harbor, Stallard says, were established at a time when ocean access was vital. Today, however, there are other priorities — such as land transportation access.

"There are certain essential activities to the economy of the region," but where they require to be located is not now known, he says.

The proposals are still in draft form. Stallard and Moody say they should be consolidated into a report for council and public presentation later this month.

Moody says Mayor Peter Pollen saw initial working drawings and recommendations, was enthusiastic and asked for a full report.

The planners visualize some of their recommendations coming to fruition within three years, while others may not take place for as long as 15 years.

STILL MORE PROBLEMS faced Montreal police as they attempted to deal with a demonstration Saturday in protest against the Vietnam war. A motorcycle policeman is struck by a banner during the height of the protest.

Shots Fell Wallace At Rally

Times News Services

Gov. George Wallace of Alabama was shot this afternoon seconds after he delivered a campaign speech at a shopping centre in Laurel, Maryland.

"I would say, in medical terms, he is alive," said spokesman C. Hatley at Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, near Laurel. Wallace was taken to the operating room for emergency surgery.

The Alabama governor had just finished a speech in his bid to become the Democratic presidential candidate in the U.S. at the shopping centre and was shot when he went out into the crowd to shake hands. He spoke from behind a bullet-proof podium.

Dean Reynolds a UPI reporter, said the governor had just taken off his coat when the shots rang out. Reynolds said the crowd around him immediately broke and ran.

BLOOD ON SHIRT

Reynolds said Wallace dropped to the ground and that he could see blood on his blue shirt.

One report at the scene said four shots were fired. One of Wallace's campaign workers, a woman, was wounded in the gunfire. She was taken away in a second ambulance.

Moments later, George Mangum, a Wallace campaign worker, told the crowd: "I'm told the police have a man in custody."

Wallace and the woman were on the ground near the speaker's rostrum, where first aid was administered until the first ambulance arrived. The wounded woman, not immediately identified, was crying and was comforted by police.

Billy Grammer, a country music entertainer on the platform with Wallace when the gunfire erupted said the candidate was hit twice, once in the middle of the stomach and once in the left arm.

"He looked like he was hurt pretty bad," Grammer said.

An Alabama State trooper on the platform also was wounded, Grammer said.

S. Viets Pushing Reds From Hue

Times News Services

South Vietnamese troops today continued to strengthen their position around the city of Hue — believed to be the next target in the current North Vietnamese offensive.

Saigon troops today re-occupied Fire Base Bastogne, 12 miles west of Hue following 36 hours of fierce fighting and B-52 saturation strikes.

Allied forces are also only a stones throw from another important fire base called Checkmate on a hill overlooking Bastogne, according to Associated Press front-line correspondent Peter Arnett.

The drive to the two fire bases was made by more than 2,000 men advancing on foot behind a shield of artillery fire and U.S. bomber support.

"We are fighting for elbow room," one U.S. adviser said of the fighting around Hue.

South Vietnamese officers, however, said they were more interested in destroying enemy troops than re-occupying the fire bases.

We'll raise the flag, but the main objective of this

BUSY STREET is as good a place as any to prepare lunch, this Montagnard woman finds in the refugee city of Kontum where she is living awaiting evacuation to Pleiku. The woman is one of an estimated 35,000 mountain tribespeople who have filtered into the city during the three-week-old North Vietnamese offensive in the area.

OWEN SOUND VOTES TO END DROUGHT

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — After 66 years of abstinence, Owen Sound has agreed by plebicite to licence liquor and diningloungе s.

Voters were 70 per cent favorable to dining lounges and 64 per cent for liquor lounges. However, wine stores and beverage rooms were rejected since they won less than the 60 per cent favorable votes needed. Only 57 per cent favored wine stores and 50 per cent beverage rooms.

The city went "dry" in 1906, although Royal Canadian Legion branches, military messes and private clubs were allowed to dispense liquor.

NEWS BRIEFS

Objections Dropped

PONN (AP) — Leaders of West Germany's opposition announced today they have dropped final objections to Chancellor Willy Brandt's friendship treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland — all but guaranteeing the pacts will be ratified by a broad majority in parliament.

'We Are Ignorant'

PENTICTON (CP) — Dave Barrett, leader of the New Democratic Party, says an NDP government would insist on a political educational program at the high school level in British Columbia. "We are not stupid, but we are ignorant," he told a public meeting here Saturday night.

Trudeau Rapped

LAKE COUCHICHING, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis of Ontario charged Sunday that Prime Minister Trudeau has abdicated his responsibility in not providing stricter controls over foreign investment.

NEW QUEBEC WALKOUTS

Times News Services

QUEBEC — Province-wide labor unrest entered its second week today with further walkouts in some areas and efforts to get back to normal in others.

About 1,800 liquor board employees here and in Montreal walked off the job in some liquor stores, warehouses and administrative offices.

A surprise 24-hour walkout by 800 blue collar employees in Quebec City began at 8 a.m. An unknown number of postal workers walked out at the post office here today and door-to-door mail delivery stopped indefinitely.

Several hospitals were hit by illegal walkouts forcing supervisory staff and volunteers to fill gaps.

In Sept-Iles, Quebecair and Air Canada, the two airlines serving the south shore community, suspended operations Sunday afternoon.

A provincial police spokesman said the airlines made the decision to cancel the flights. There were reports the airlines received a telephone call warning that the airport would be blown up if airline traffic continued.

Two small fires were set Sunday night at the Quebec Cartier mining site at Port Cartier, causing about $1,000 damage, police said.

Norbert Rodrigue, spokesman for the common front of public servants, lashed out today at Premier Robert Bourassa's statement Sunday that there were scheduled union-government meetings which could bring early settlement of Quebec's labor problems.

BAD FAITH

Rodrigue said no talks between common front leaders and newly-appointed Civil Service Minister Jean Cournoyer had been held and none were planned.

"The Quebec government has once again shown proof of its bad faith by making false insinuations," he said.

He said on the weekend three Quebec labor presidents will not appeal one-year sentences for contempt of court imposed last Monday.

Bourassa in a television interview Sunday said he was convinced negotiations with

Call Rallies CLC

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The ninth biennial convention of the Canadian Labor Congress opened today with close to 1,800 delegates rallying to a call to defend the right to strike.

"The right of organized workers to withhold their labor is, in the final analysis, the only way in which the collective bargaining process can remain viable," CLC president Donald MacDonald said in his opening address.

"If the right to strike is outlawed," he said, "bargaining can be nothing more than chit-chat between the employer and the union, with the employer in the end unilaterally decreeing wages, salaries and other working conditions."

9 Dead in Belfast Battle

Times News Services

BELFAST — British paratroopers clamped an armored grip on Belfast's Roman Catholic Ballymurphy area today. Authorities revised upward the number of dead in the worst Catholic-Protestant battle in three years of strife.

Army spokesmen said today at least nine persons died in weekend fighting between opposing religious groups, with the British army caught in the crossfire between them.

The weekend fighting brought to 327 the number of dead in Northern Ireland since British troops arrived in August, 1969, to control strife between the majority Protestants and outnumbered Catholics. The army said two of the weekend's nine dead were killed Friday night or early Saturday morning.

The army said quiet prevailed early today on the battlefield of bullet-scarred buildings between the Ballymurphy district, one of the toughest Catholic enclaves in the city, and the Protestant Springmartin housing development.

"But there is still a lot of tension in the air," one British officer said. "It won't take much to touch things off again."

More than 2,000 shots were fired in the 36-hour battle, and more than 70 civilians and soldiers were wounded.

The battle began Saturday afternoon when a bomb in a car blasted Kelly's Bar, on the edge of Ballymurphy. The Catholics charged that Protestants planted the bomb; the army said it believed it belonged to the Irish Republican Army and went off prematurely.

The pub was jammed with soccer fans watching an international match on television, and 53 persons, including some children playing outside, were wounded. Two men seen near the car when it blew up may have been killed.

Snipers hidden along the grassy edge of the Springmartin estate opened fire on the crowd which raced to the blast scene.

NOW WE KNOW FOR SURE . . . MONEY IS REALLY DIRTY

CHICAGO (CP) — A couple of Kentucky doctors have found that money is really dirty and have published a tongue-in-cheek paper on their findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The doctors borrowed 62 pennies, 38 nickles, 27 dimes, 33 quarters and 50 paper bills of small denomination, with no discrimination as to age, sex, color or religion of the lender, so the results would be unbiased. They then cultured the coins and bills.

They discovered that 13 per cent of the coins and 42 per cent of the bills were contaminated by potentially disease-causing bacteria. Pennies, nickels and small denomination paper bills were more often contaminated than larger coins and bills, a fact they explained was logically due to the rapid turnover and frequent exchange of small coins and bills.

1. Keep your money in the bank.
2. If you must carry money, carry only large bills, preferably the $50 and $100 denominations.
3. Don't make change.
4. Keep your hands out of your pockets.
5. Get rid of your money rapidly.
6. Campaign against piggy banks.

The authors concluded sadly: "Despite the importance of this study, the investigators fear that people will continue to handle, fondle and jingle in their pockets — money."

As a panacea they suggested: "In order to further this research, we will accept and examine any money sent to us. If it is found to be contaminated, we have facilities for its safe disposal."
